Jet attack may have been mistake

Soviets tracking U.S. spy plane

By STEVE HAGEY
United Press International

A Soviet air force general said Sunday the Korean jet that vanished with 283 people aboard may have been mistaken for a U.S. spy plane. U.S. officials admitted such a plane had flown over the area but avoided Russian airspace.

An administration official said a U.S. reconnaissance plane flew over the Sea of Japan before Korean Air Lines Flight 007 was downed, suggesting the Soviets may have thought the spy plane had entered Soviet airspace.

But the Reagan administration insisted the identity of the Korean Air Lines 747 was clear when it was shot down Thursday over the Sea of Japan. In Moscow, Col. Gen. Semyon Romanov, chief of staff of the Soviet air defense command, said Russian pilots who stalked a South Korean plane that strayed twice into Siberian airspace merely fired "warning shots with tracer shells."

In a dispatch on Romanov's version of the event, the official Soviet news agency Tass again did not give a direct response to U.S. charges that a Sukhoi SU-15 jet fighter shot down KAL Flight 007 with a heat-seeking missile.

In Washington, President Reagan played tapes of intercepted Soviet military communications for six congressional leaders and a Senate leader said later it was "clear beyond any doubt" the Soviets shot down the unarmed Boeing 747.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan told key leaders of Congress—Washington has "irrefutable" proof the Soviets downed the KAL jet with 283 people aboard, including Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., and 60 other Americans. All are presumed dead.

Korean Air Lines offered to pay $75,000 compensation to the family of each victim aboard the New York-to-Seoul flight via Anchorage, Alaska. Reagan arranged to address the nation on television Monday night to announce what was billed as a strong but "limited" U.S. response.

In Moscow, Romanov accused a "South Korean plane" of violating Soviet airspace Thursday over the Kamchatka peninsula and Sakhalin Island—both bristling with Russian military installations.

In an important refinement of Moscow's previous explanations, Romanov said the plane "flew with extinguished lights and its outlines resemble much those of the American reconnaissance plane RC-135."

"The plane seemed to be stalking under the cover of night above our territory," Romanov said. "And there are no doubts that this was a deliberate action designed as a rude provocation. It is not difficult to guess who and for what purpose needed this provocation."

American officials said a U.S. reconnaissance flight had been in the area some 600 miles northwest of Tokyo, but was well outside of Soviet airspace.

President adopts a cautious approach toward retaliation

WASHINGTON—President Reagan's tough talk in condemning the Soviet Union for shooting down a Korean civilian airliner may not be followed by tough action.

The series of responses the president is to propose in his speech to the nation Monday night are not expected to be as harsh as his rhetoric.

In another era, President Theodore Roosevelt said the United States should "speak softly and carry a big stick." Reagan, aware that many people at home and abroad fear he is too warlike, seems to have taken this opposite motto: Speak loudly, but don't do anything rash.

After the president met Sunday for two hours and forty minutes with the bipartisan leaders of Congress at the White House, aide to one congressman said: "The operative phrase is 'measured steps.' That's what the president will be outlining" in the speech. He added that the administration hopes the international community will join in taking some sanctions against the Soviet Union, such as cutting off Soviet airline service to and from other countries.

As the White House announced the Labor Day speech and announced the U.S. position was clouded by indications that an American reconnaissance plane may have been near when the ill-fated Korean airliner strayed off course and entered Soviet airspace last Thursday, leading the Russians to believe the intruder was a military spy plane.

This throws some doubt on the administration's insistence that there is "irrefutable" evidence, including taped radio transmissions from Soviet fighter pilots, that the Russians knew they were firing on a commercial airliner rather than a hostile intruder.

The tapes of these transmissions during the final eight-minute period when the Korean jet was tracked and fired upon by the Soviets were played for the congressional leaders during the meeting with Reagan in the Oval Office.

As he emerged from the White House, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said that Soviet pilots "were fired to the plane" and they were tracking as an RC-135, the designation of American military reconnaissance planes which routinely skirt the borders of Soviet territory gathering electronic intelligence.

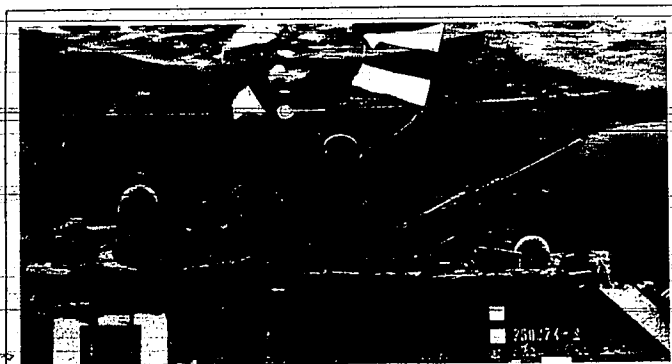

Later, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Wright was mistaken in saying that the Soviet pilots referred to an RC-135 in their transmissions.

Speakes said that in the speech Reagan will deliver from the White House at 6 p.m. MDT Monday, the president will outline some steps to be taken unilaterally by the United States and propose others to be made "in concert with the international community."

But Speakes also emphasized that the focus of this "range of options" the president was considering was to make a "measured response."

Other sources have indicated that the thrust of the proposals will be toward obtaining temporary suspension of Soviet commercial landing rights in other nations and new international regulations to prevent a recurrence of the recent tragedy.

Cheering Israeli troops leave the Shouf Mountains Sunday

Israelis out, fighting erupts

By JACK REDDEN
United Press International

Israeli forces left Lebanon's Shouf Mountains Sunday, sparking fierce sectarian warfare and prompting Beirut to freeze its troop withdrawal pact with the Jewish state. Mortars hit U.S. Marine positions at Beirut airport.

One Marine was slightly wounded in the new outbreak of hostilities, which included an Israeli air attack on advancing Syrian tanks, but there were no further American casualties.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens warned Syria not to take over territory vacated by Israeli troops. "We made it clear we do not want hostile forces entering the area that we leave," he told a news conference.

"It should be clear to the Syrians that it includes them," he said. The redeployment, dubbed Operation Grindstone, was completed ahead of schedule by Sunday evening.

Syria, which immediately began to advance its vacated area, said the Israeli withdrawal to the long-term positions south of the dangerous Shouf meant "Lebanon becomes partitioned."

With the factional battles overflowing from the Shouf Mountains, artillery shells and rockets alarmed into the Christian suburbs along the coast north of Beirut at the rate of one every 30 seconds, official Beirut radio said.

The shelling along the coast south of Beirut was termed "fierce."

Beirut radio said Iranian soldiers took over the Lebanese army barracks in the Syrian-controlled city of Banabeek and ran up the flag of Iran's Revolutionary Guards. It had been reported occupied by pro-Iranian Lebanese Shiite-Muslims on Saturday.

A spokesman for the U.S. Marines based around the airport in the south of the capital said that shells, apparently from Druze Muslim or Syrian guns, were crashing into the surrounding area but U.S. forces were not in danger.

One Marine was slightly wounded by shrapnel Sunday afternoon. Six mortar rounds hit U.S. positions in the evening without causing further casualties. An Italian peacekeeper

DOE labels reactor incident minor 'industrial accident'

By HAL BERNTSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—A U.S. Department of Energy spokesman says that his agency did not intend to disclose a liquid-nitrogen spill that erupted in a nuclear-reactor support structure at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory because it was a "minor industrial accident."

The Department of Energy confirmed the Aug. 16 accident at the INEL's Naval Reactor Facility early last week after inquiries by The Times-News.

Peter Mygatt, a Department of Energy spokesman, said Friday that the agency did not intend to make the accidental spill public because it did not result in any release of radioactive material nor cause any injuries.

According to Mygatt, the spill occurred during a routine maintenance job to replace plumbing on a prototype reactor similar to those used on nuclear-powered surface ships. He said the spill caused a three-foot crack in the reactor in a non-critical area of the support structure.

Despite the Department of Energy's confirmation, a discrepancy still exists over the severity of the accident.

The Times-News reported last week that sources at the INEL indicated the spill also damaged a protective shield surrounding the reactor. This shield blocks radiation from escaping the reactor.

These sources confirmed that the reactor, which has been shut down for the past four months, posed no major safety danger, since its fuel rods are in a "non-critical," or non-fission, condition.

But the sources indicated that repairing the shield will be a difficult, costly and time-consuming procedure.

Until the repair job is carried out successfully, the reactor cannot be refueled and made operational again.

Mygatt said that a small 4-by-8-inch section of the shield will have to be removed to fix the cracked support. See INEL on Page A2

Labor chiefs assail Reagan

By DREW VON BERGEN
UPI Labor Reporter

WASHINGTON—Union leaders denounced President Reagan's economic and social policies Sunday and AFL-CIO officials made final preparations for nationwide Labor Day demonstrations to pump up anti-administration sentiment.

Solidarity Day III rallies, parades and demonstrations were scheduled in about 150 cities. AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland planned to march in parades in New York and Chicago on Monday and end the day with a speech in Omaha, Neb.

Federation leaders made clear the effort is aimed at ousting Reagan from the White House in 1984. The labor federation is expected to endorse former Vice President Walter Mondale for the Democratic nomination next month.

"It is the approaching prospect of replacing Reagan, and a growing realization of the key role labor will play in the process, that sends a ray of sunshine through the cloud that hangs over us today," said John Leyden, executive director of the AFL-CIO's Public Employee Department.

In a Labor Day message, Reagan saluted the workers of the nation: "The endeavors of today's workers and their unions assure that our country will have an even brighter future... Americans still believe that all work is noble. In celebrating the efforts of American workers past and present, we honor this fundamental truth as well."

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, in an article written for newspapers around the country, said Reagan's "program is putting 'hundreds of thousands' back to work and forecast 'renewed economic growth without a return to the boom and bust cycles of the past.'"

The civilian unemployment rate reported last week was 9.5 percent, meaning 10.7 million Americans were seeking work, compared to a record 101.6 million in the job.

Kirkland, devoting most of his comments to the federation's reasons for endorsing a candidate before the first primary is held next year, said Labor Day statements from the White House "have sounded empty and false."

"These once-a-year statements of appreciation would be welcome if they were matched by some indications of concern on the other 364 days of the year," he said.

Railway Clerks President Richard Kilmy urged organized labor to "double our political action—not to just return fair policies to the White House, but also to recapture the Senate, where we've seen progressive legislation defeated time after time."

Briefly

Mountain Home crash kills 1

MOUNTAIN HOME — A man based at Mountain Home Air Force Base died Sunday when he ran his motorcycle into the back of a pickup truck at a high speed.

David G. Boufford, 21, died at the scene after he collided with the pickup at about 1:10 a.m. He was driving his motorcycle at a speed estimated to be in excess of 80 mph, said Elmore County Sheriff Cpl. Rodney Herrett.

Herrett said Boufford had left a Mountain Home bar and was being chased by a Mountain Home city police officer for running a traffic light. Boufford was accelerating at the time of the impact.

Boufford hit a pickup driven by Dean Withlers, 41, of Mountain Home, apparently without trying to avoid it, Herrett said. After the impact, the pickup went out of control and hit three parked vehicles. Withlers was treated at the scene for shock.

Police still are investigating the accident.

NASA told to downplay Glenn

NEW YORK (UPI) — The White House ordered NASA to portray Democratic presidential candidate Sen. John Glenn as a "superhero" during the agency's 25th anniversary, Newsweek reported Sunday.

As the first American to orbit Earth, Glenn is mentioned prominently in several of NASA's commemorative publications — but not too prominently, Newsweek said.

The magazine quoted an unidentified Reagan aide as saying, "We've told (NASA) to give the guy his due, but not to make him a superhero."

Glenn, a Democratic candidate for president and U.S. senator from Ohio, also is interested in not allowing his image as an astronaut to overshadow his political credentials, the magazine said.

Hope dims for kidnap victim

ROME (UPI) — Two grim messages from the purported kidnappers of Emanuela Orlandi appeared to leave little hope Sunday that the 15-year-old Vatican schoolgirl is still alive.

The anonymous kidnappers, one of two that have claimed to have kidnapped the girl, left one message on a cassette recording just outside the Vatican's Angelica gate and another written message at Castelgandolfo, the town south of Rome where the papal summer residence is located.

The taped message used the past tense referring to a sheet of music that "belonged" to Emanuela, who disappeared June 22.

The cassette and photocopy of the sheet music were found in a garbage can by reporters of the Italian news agency ANSA who were directed to it by an anonymous caller.

Idaho farms on the increase

BOISE (UPI) — Agriculture officials say Idaho was one of only nine states to experience an increase in the number of farms operating last year compared to 1982. The state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says 24,400 farms were in operation around Idaho last year.

That reflects an increase of about 200 farms compared to the previous 12-month period.

However, the service says the total amount of acreage cultivated in the Gem State remained constant during 1982 at 15.1 million acres.

Nationally, officials said the number of farms in the United States declined 1 percent last year, to 2.27 million. They said the sharpest declines were in the southeastern and north-central areas of the country.

Voter registration drive works

DETROIT (UPI) — The "Overground Railroad" drive up successfully Sunday, registering more than 5,000 new black voters during a 360-mile trek through four states and 77 cities, NAACP Executive Director Benjamin Hooks said.

Hooks said between 5,000 and 7,000 black voters were registered during the march that began Aug. 13 in Covington, Ky., and included stops in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan.

"On a scale to one to 10, I'd say we scored a 102," Hooks said. "We succeeded in galvanizing the voters."

The drive was aimed at approximately 7.5 million unregistered black voters in the United States. The NAACP hopes to get at a portion of them to join the 10-million registered black voters in time for the 1984 presidential election.

UAW, Chrysler begin talks

DETROIT (UPI) — Labor Day will be no holiday for United Auto Workers bargainers who are meeting with Chrysler Corp. on the company's offer of a pay raise for U.S. workers.

Union officials will go straight to the bargaining table from the union's Solidarity Day III in downtown Detroit.

Negotiations began Saturday in Toronto, but the Canadian talks likely will take their lead from U.S. talks beginning Monday afternoon in Detroit.

The talks were announced Friday by the union, one day after Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca asked UAW President Owen Bieber to bring his bargainers to the table.

An earlier set of talks between the union and the company broke off in late July after the two sides could not agree on contracts covering 45,000 U.S. workers and 9,600 Canadians. The current contract expires Jan. 14, 1984.

ISU head wants sales tax hike

POCATELLO (UPI) — Idaho State University President Myron Coulter says the State Legislature should adopt Gov. John Evans' plan to make permanent the temporary 1.5-cent sales tax hike.

The tax is needed to offset the possible shortfall in fiscal year 1985 revenues and to help the University escape the "constant threat of retrenchment," Coulter told a meeting of the school's faculty and staff last week.

He said the school has embarked on several fundraising efforts to help itself because the present funding formula for state universities "is not favorable to Idaho State University."

Plane

U.S. officials confirmed the Soviets initially identified the aircraft as a KC-135. American officials did not say exactly where or what time the surveillance plane was doing in the northern Pacific.

"There is no excuse that can justify this ruthless taking of innocent life," Spokes quoted Reagan as telling the lawmakers Sunday at the White House.

"It is an affront to humanity. The Soviets tried to deny their responsibility, but we have definite proof the Soviets intentionally shot down that unarmed civilian aircraft," Reagan said.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard Burt, appearing on the CBS news show "Face the Nation," said Reagan Monday will "talk about what steps we are prepared to take together with our allies, but more importantly I think he will want to describe our overall approach to the Soviet Union."

Burt said the Soviets had seriously damaged their self-proclaimed reputation as a peace-loving nation and could only repair their image by acknowledging responsibility.

structure. But he denied that the shield or its tank was cracked. Repairs should be completed in two or three weeks, he said. However, a Times-News source says the shield tank structure is "definitely cracked."

To repair the crack, the source says, the tank must be drained of water, a layer of lead lining taken out and low-level radioactive sludge removed. Then, the shield and its supports must be rewelded so as to be free of hairline cracks.

Even with these repairs complete, it still is not certain that the shield and tank will be able to meet the rigid design specifications required in nuclear-reactor "construction," the source reports.

Another source reports that it will be difficult to determine the full extent of the cracking caused by the liquid nitrogen.

"They could come clean and give us the facts and explain precisely what happened and if people are to blame, those people should be punished," he said.

"Secondly, they owe the world an apology. Thirdly, people have been killed and there are reparations that must be paid to the cultures, families and others," Burt said.

Protests against the Soviets continued for a third day. On New York's Long Island, about 1,000 protesters stormed a Russian diplomatic retreat Sunday, burned a Soviet flag and injured five police officers.

also was slightly wounded by a shell.

Shells and rockets could be seen falling across the Christian half of the city and Beirut radio broke into broadcasts of patriotic songs with updates on the latest area hit. The government news agency said five people were killed and 38 were wounded.

In retaliation for what Lebanon said was an Israeli failure to honor a promise to give the Lebanese army time to deploy in the Israeli positions, the government suspended the agreement signed with Israel in May.

"The Lebanese-Israeli agreement is considered frozen, especially since it has not been ratified," state-run television announced as the sound of artillery rumbled across Beirut.

"Prime Minister Cheikh Wazzan and Foreign Minister Fille Salem told Secretary General of the Arab League Chadi Kilbi in a telephone call that this withdrawal took place outside the context of any agreement, particularly — the Israeli-Lebanese agreement," the report said.

The agreement, bitterly opposed by Syria, gave Israel economic and political concessions in return for a total troop withdrawal.

The Israeli military command insisted "advance notice of the pullback was given to representatives of the Lebanese army, the Druze and Christians in all sectors, with a demand to maintain quiet in the area."

The battle for the Shufi overhauled a car-bomb attack in the south of Beirut, the stronghold of the Shiite Muslims who rebelled against the government of President Amin Gemayel last week.

State-run Beirut radio reported nine charred and torn bodies, including that of a child, and another 14 wounded.

U.S. Middle East envoy Richard Fairbanks met President Amin Gemayel at the presidential palace.

Today's weather

Sunny and mild weather for holiday

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:

Sunny and mild today, with southwest winds of 10-15 mph. Highs in the middle to high 70s. Tonight it will be fair and cool with light winds, with lows of 40 to 45. Tuesday will be sunny and mild, with highs of 75 to 80.

Camas-Franklin-Halley, Wood River Valley:

Sunny and mild today, with highs in the mid-60s to low 70s. Fair and cool tonight, with lows in the 30s. Tuesday also will be sunny and mild, with highs in the mid-60s.

Northern Nevada and Utah:

The forecast for northern Utah is fair on Monday, with Tuesday being a little warmer. The Nevada's forecast is for sunny skies today and Tuesday, with light winds. Highs both days of 75-85. The lows on tonight will be in the upper 30s and 40s.

Synopsis:

A northwesterly flow of cool, stable air aloft will continue to dominate the weather over Idaho for at least the next couple of days. Weak weather disturbance embedded in this flow will brush across the northern third of the state, bringing periodic increases in clouds and a few showers to that area. In the meantime, the remainder of the state will have fair days and cool nights through Tuesday.

The low temperatures around the state Sunday morning were in the high 50s. Stanley and Soda Springs shared the low in the state, with 31 degrees. The high temperature on Sunday was 82 degrees, reported at Hagerman.

Moderate winds were continuing to blow in southern Idaho on Sunday afternoon, Pocatello reported gusts of up to 20 mph.

The agricultural outlook for southern Idaho indicates no rainfall over the area for the next five days.

Daily average evaporation rates will be between 2.5 and 3.0 inches throughout the period.

Winds for spraying will be from 4 to 6 mph in the morning, increasing to between 10 and 15 mph in the afternoons through Tuesday.

The temperatures elsewhere in the nation on Sunday ranged from a high of 116 at Gila Bend, Ariz., to a low of 33 degrees, at Truckee, Calif.

Highway death toll mounts

By United Press International

Drunk drivers and failure to use seatbelts helped push the toll of traffic deaths ever higher on the nation's crowded highways Sunday.

A United Press International count showed at least 243 people died in traffic accidents since the holiday started at 6 p.m. local time Friday. The counting period ends at midnight Monday.

California with 23 fatalities had the highest toll. Texas counted 19 and Oklahoma 17. New York and Ohio had 13 each. North Carolina 12.

Mississippi and Florida 11 and Georgia 10.

The National Safety Council predicted that 450 to 550 people would be killed in traffic accidents during the three-day weekend. Between 18,000 and 22,000 people may suffer disabling injuries in traffic accidents during that time, the council said.

Three people died and six were injured in Georgia when a vehicle failed to yield the right-of-way at an intersection on Georgia 11 near Jefferson. All the dead were in the car that had the right-of-way.

Three people were killed in a head-on collision of two pickup trucks on Arizona 98 near Page, Ariz. Police said the 31-year-old driver of one truck ran off the right side of the road and over-corrected, sending his vehicle into the eastbound lane where it collided head-on with another pickup. Both drivers were killed, along with the 21-month-old child of the second driver.

A hit-run accident killed an 8-year-old boy in an alley in Green Bay, Wis., Sunday afternoon.

Holiday or not, safety officials in almost all states say that drunken drivers cause most accidents.

Shuttle mission was best one yet

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — The astronauts on the best shuttle mission yet started their final hours in space Sunday night readying Challenger for a fiery descent to an unprecedented night landing early Labor Day.

Astronauts Richard Truly, Daniel Brandenstein, Guion Bluford, William Thornton and Dale Gardner began their day shortly after 6 p.m. MDT to the rousing sounds of a John Philip Sousa march "Semper Parvulus."

"Good morning," Truly told mission control. "You've got everybody marching around up here."

Forecasters predicted perfect weather for the touch down to bring America's first black spaceman back to Earth.

Landing was scheduled for 1:40 a.m. MDT — 12:40 a.m. local time.

There were no welcoming crowds for the astronauts. Concerns about security at night prompted NASA to bar the public.

Truly and Brandenstein, the shuttle's pilots, counted on six of the world's brightest floodlights — each producing 800 million candlepower — to turn the concrete runway into a gleaming strip visible from more than 100 miles away.

In addition, they had landing cues from flashing strobe lights, a string of green lights, white runway lights and a special array of lights that appeared if the shuttle is too low as it glides in toward a landing, and white if it is too high.

The shuttle flies without navigation or landing lights, but a sheath of electrically charged gases around the ship, generated by air friction during the 17,500-mph re-entry to the atmosphere, was likely to make the shuttle look like a flaming meteorite to observers in the central Pacific.

The astronauts were returning from their six-day, 2.1-million mile orbital voyage with six rats, a wealth of scientific and engineering data and 260,000 collector's envelopes to be sold.

Crime statistics show drop

By WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of people victimized by crime in the United States fell 4.1 percent in 1982, the largest drop since the government began its National Crime Survey 10 years ago, the Justice Department said Sunday.

The department's annual survey said there were 39.8 million incidents of crime against people in 1982, down from 41.5 million in 1981.

"There are strong arguments in support of the belief that crime rates are declining as the so-called baby boom generation matures, since a high proportion of criminal offenders are young," said Steven Schlessinger, director of the department's Bureau of Justice Statistics.

"When there are relatively fewer young people in the population, crime would be expected to decline," he said.

Schlessinger said the drop also may be due to longer, tougher prison sentences and the record number of criminals in state and federal prisons.

The National Crime Survey, which began 10 years ago, is based on Census Bureau interviews with 132,000 people in 58,000 households.

Alaskans ready for windfall

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — At a time when many American families are strapped for cash, residents of Alaska are again sharing some of the revenues the state receives from vast petroleum reserves.

Checks for $386.15 will be sent by mid-September to every man, woman and child who qualifies for the Alaska Permanent Fund, officials said. About $175.6 million will be split among 455,000 Alaskans applying for the cash.

The amount is about one-third of the revenue distributed last year under the unique program, said Colleen Brown of the state Department of Revenue. Some $480 million was applied for last year.

Last year's $1,000 each payment was the first to be distributed. It represented three years of accrued interest in the program. It also included some money from the state general fund placed in the special account by the Legislature.

Manila decay evident

The Reagan administration appears to be still puzzling over the appropriate response to the assassination of Philippine opposition leader Benigno Aquino. Mr. Reagan expressed a sense of shock. But the event... calls for a searching re-evaluation of American relations with the government of Ferdinand Marcos.

That is not a task that the administration is keen to take on so quickly after the United States has reached an agreement — at a cost of nearly $1 billion — to renew leases on American naval and aircraft bases at Subic Bay and Clark Field in the Philippines. Moreover, in the face of a visit to Manila scheduled for later this year, Mr. Reagan would clearly prefer to avoid any rancor in relations with the dictatorial Mr. Marcos.

Events have nevertheless thrust an obligation upon the White House: The crisis overshadowing Mr. Marcos' government after the cold-blooded killing of its primary political challenger can't be weathered by Washington with diplomacy as usual. The assassination emphasized as has nothing else the dreadful state of decay in Philippine politics.

It's really the principle

The Reagan administration is getting tough with deadbeats who don't even try to repay their student loans. By cross-referencing Social Security numbers, it is nabbing those who work for the federal government, including the armed services, and making them pay.

Attaching a portion of the deadbeats' wages does more than repay Uncle Sam, however. It also replenishes the funds available to help a new generation of college students. And it offers the deadbeats a free post-graduate course in social responsibility.

And why stop with federal employees? There are deadbeats aplenty among doctors, lawyers, the media, and elsewhere. They, too, should be located and made to repay their student loans.

The administration should not hesitate to expand its use of private collections agencies as an efficient way to recoup money owed the federal government. It's not the principal; it's the principle.

Column lacked 'horse sense'

I recently read a newspaper article by Phil Batt. In this article, Mr. Batt claimed that the College of Southern Idaho's Horse Management Program was a waste of the taxpayer's money. He claimed that learning equitation, horse husbandry, and even rodeo, were classes that lacked "horse sense."

Personally, I have taken the Horse Management Program at CSI. I found it to be quite adequate. I developed better horsemanship skills, along with learning to keep my horse healthy, safe, and disease free. The program offered courses including: horse shoeing, rodeo, English equitation, and a course taught by a licensed veterinarian. Shawn Davis, the coach of CSI's successful rodeo team, advised the program. Shawn accomplished in each of his students a positive, winning attitude.

After reading Batt's article, I concluded that the article lacked the "horse sense," not the accused Horse Management Program. In fact, I have gotten more practical use from the program's courses than all the history, science, and English that I have taken.

As for the program wasting the tax payers' money? Let the tax payers be the judge of that! After all, they are the ones who sign up for the program.

Mr. Batt, I hold nothing against you. But please, if you are going to write an article, get the facts! MICHELLE KELLEY

'No America without labor'

Lab Day 1983.
"All that serves labor serves the Nation. All that harms labor is treason to America. No line can be drawn between these two. If any man tells you he loves America, yet hates labor, he is a liar. If any man tells you he trusts America yet fears labor, he is a fool. There is no America without labor and to fleece the one is to rob the other."
—Abraham Lincoln

"Labor plays a vital part in the functioning of the modern state. If labor can be confused or embittered, if labor can be made to lose faith in the community of which it forms a part, then the core of any national society is threatened."

"The enemies of democracy know this, and it explains the efforts they make to undermine the confidence of the labor element in the stability of our institutions and the soundness of our traditions.

"No section of the American population has a more vital stake in the preservation of free institutions in the world than has American labor. For among the first victims of any dictatorial regime — and notably of the police state — is the right of labor to organize itself for the protection of its interests."

—George C. Marshall, General U.S. Army.

Reagan making serious error

In my opinion, President Reagan is making a serious mistake in going around this nation trying to convince various nationalities of his concern for their welfare.

Why this dividing of a great nation into groups of origin or wealth? We are all or should be Americans first, last and always. A bloody civil war was fought to preserve this nation and every one of us should thank God that the continent today is a peaceful spot in a world of turmoil. These people whether of Spanish, Negro or Jewish descent are and should be willing to claim America as their land and home.

No man or political party ever hope to maintain a unified nation by playing to the ranting of some Hindu guru or Spanish speaking rabble rouser. Let them say "My fellow Americans."

Now let's take a look at one of the sore spots within this nation, that communist-inspired and chartered holed known as the United Nations. Founded and its direction set by admitted followers of Russian ideology, this blot on freedom is largely made possible by Uncle Sam's open pocket.

Today we pay over 25 percent of its costs while Russia, the leader of world communism, only pays 14 percent and is years behind. A large part of this finance can be dumped on the shoulders of this nation.

For years the U.S. worked tooth and claw to admit any group of people however ignorant or illiterate. Witness the hastily formed nations of Africa where nations were formed that only had 8 people who could read or write, who had no conception of democratic government, who had little or no knowledge of world affairs and whose leaders sat grandly on a chair whisking flies from their faces with a zebra tail. We have watched while delegates from such nations with varying rights equal to the U.S., England, France have followed the example of Russia by condemning the Jewish nation of Israel for defending itself against Kremlin inspired sabotage.

Today we witness the invasion of the helpless desert nation of Chad by a fanatical Libyan dictator while the United Nations is stymied by open communist endorsement of that country simply because Libya is allied with Russia. The same for Afghanistan.

Meanwhile, our ambassador to the United Nations frantically waves her fly swatter and makes sounds reminiscent of the fiddle. "This means peace in our time," by Neville Chamberlain after his abject yielding to Adolph Hitler at Munich. CECIL CALHOUN

Communists waging open war

The Communist war against free people goes on! Perhaps the latest Russian act of war by deliberately shooting down a commercial airliner with U.S. Congressman Lawrence P. McDonald as one of the murder victims will awaken apathetic Americans to the fact that the Communists are waging war on us openly and that it is time for the U.S. to respond.

The Russians slave masters cry "peace" as they continue to enslave 5 million of their own citizens in concentration camps and use every terrorist tactic available to subvert one country after another until those countries fall into the Communist camp. Ironically the weapons used to shoot down the airlines very likely were designed in the U.S. and provided to the Russians through some aid and trade program. Without U.S. money and technology Communism would cease to exist.

If we don't take a stand for liberty and freedom and stop financing communism and supporting them through technological aid we may soon find concentration camps in America too. Communist subversion from within our country must also be exposed. For example, the communists are coordinating the "nuclear freeze" movement which will in effect disarm the United States. We must stop all aid and trade with communism and expose their subversive activities in the U.S. by once again giving the F.B.I. and other security agencies the authority to protect us.

It can happen here and it will happen here as it has throughout the world unless we take action now to stop the advance of communism.

America still land of opportunity, but learn while young

Lab Day is as good a time as any to reflect on how children learn about the capitalist system. All my prejudices and experiences about free enterprise were formed when I was a kid.

My first inkling of what American business was all about took place when I was 10 years old, and sold "Collier's" magazine every week at the Idaho, Lone Island, railroad station. Business was pretty good in those days you worked for premiums such as roller-skates and bicycles as well as money. Then a large gorilla of a boy showed up with the Saturday Evening Post, and told me if I remained at the station while he was there he would burn cigarette holes in my arms.

In later fantasies I stood my ground and defied him to carry out his threat. In real life I did what any smaller kid would do, and stayed away from the railroad station. This experience made its mark on me, and I have hated big business ever since, as well as bigness for its own sake.

My second job, at age 12, was to take a wagon and stand in front of the A&P on Jamaica Avenue offering to pull people's packages home for 10 cents a bag. I even put up a sign made from a laundry cardboard with a slogan, "We Deliver Everything But Babies." The manager, for reasons I never understood, made me take down the sign and told me to stay off his sidewalk. When I asked him why, he said, "It is none of your business."

I learned my second lesson. For an enterprising soul, America was the land of opportunity, providing you didn't try to start a private delivery service on the sidewalk in front of an A&P.

My third job, at age 13, was delivering flowers on weekends and holidays for a society florist who owned concessions at the Hotel Roosevelt and Ritz Carlton in New York City. I never saw the people I delivered the flowers to because I had to use the service entrances of the Park and Fifth Avenue buildings. But I did get an opportunity to listen to their help. The experience confirmed my suspicions that it was much better to be rich than poor. But it also taught me that no matter how wealthy I became when I grew up, I would never be a hero to my help.

At age 14 I applied for a job as a mailroom helper at school at Paramount Pictures on Broadway in New York City. I noticed the personnel manager's name on the door was

Mr. O'Connor. I walked in and told his secretary that "Father Murphy of St. Francis College in Brooklyn sent me."

Mr. O'Connor saw me and asked how Father Murphy was. I could tell he was taking it. When I said the good priest was fine and spoke warmly of Mr. O'Connor, I got the job. The lesson I learned from this encounter was that it is always better to lie in the business world to get a job than to be honest and thrown out into the street.

At age 15 I worked the summer in a hotel at Long Beach, Long Island. I started as an elevator operator, and then became the night clerk from midnight until 11 a.m. in the morning. My instructions from management were that if a couple came in with luggage, to charge them the regular rate for a room, but if they came in without luggage to double the rate. The people with luggage invariably complained about the rate, but those without luggage never argued with me. I discovered another valuable lesson about business. If you provided an urgent need for someone in the United States, price was never a problem for the person who desperately wanted it.

I don't believe I learned too much about the free enterprise system from my days at the Marine Corps, except for one lesson that still seems to hold true. When you get into a poker game, the guys with the largest stacks of poker chips in front of them can usually bluff the people with their tiny stacks out of every pot.

With all its faults, America is still a land of opportunity, especially if you learn the ropes when you're young. If you wait until you go to the Harvard Business School to find out how the system works, you might possibly make it in the real world, but you will have missed out on all the fun.

Art Buchwald writes from Washington for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate.

Big Chief had much more class than mutants

I have figured out this quality of education problem. All these high-powered commissions that have been issuing edicts from on high have missed the crucial point. There is a glaring gap in the way we are administering book learning to our whelps. How can we reasonably expect to achieve educational excellence in a world without Big Chief writing tablets?

I discovered the problem a few days ago when I was elected to help equip my son for his entry into the left intellectual milieu of the fourth grade. This is one of my areas of considerable expertise. I once attended fourth grade.

Further, I remember well the necessary prerequisites of success at that stage of one's educational career. My peers would not dream of venturing into the halls of knowledge unless properly armed with the tablets of the above-mentioned Big Chief tablet (multi-colored for the upwardly mobile).

There were some variations on the theme. The over-achievers among us would accomplish a bit of social climbing with Roy

Dick Manning

Rogers notebooks and matching lunch boxes. Certain students, who must have had parents of enormous wealth, would conspicuously consume those nifty fat-barreled pens that would discharge red, blue or black ink at the writer's option.

Those of us who passed for a fourth-grade version of street wise would acquire complimentary pens offered at holidays through the good offices of Dubie's Bar and Grill. They were not superior writing instruments, but when discolored and slightly modified, would launch small projectiles in the most convincing fashion.

Knowing all these things, I took son in tow and ventured to market to buy the necessary tools for the construction of his educational foundation. I informed him of my plan to go all out. We would acquire a wide-ruler tablet emblazoned with full-color representations of both Roy and Trigger along with an ample supply of number two pencils. (You will recall being allowed to use Number 2 pencils served as a rite of passage from those enigmatic black creatures wielded in the lower grades.)

I assumed his howls of protest that greeted my plan were merely a reflection of his ignorance to the ways of the world and ignored them.

Upon arrival at the store, I was hit with a rude shock. Not only were there no Roy Rogers tablets, there were none of the more pedestrian Big Chief offerings. There was not a likeness of Dale Evans or even Nellie Belle. No Flicka. No Sky King. No Buffalo Bob. No Mousketeers. No Sooty Sales. No Tom Terrific. Not even a lousy Bozo the Clown.

Instead, there was the most repulsive collection of mutants, weirdly dressed warriors, blobs and twisted creatures straight out of an imagination obviously in the final throes of delirium tremens. I was informed by the offspring that these frightening countenances were all generated by a movie called "Return of the Jedi." I was further informed such materials were considered exceedingly desirable among his peers and were guaranteed to immeasurably enhance the educational process.

On a vote of 1-1, we decided to look further. Alternative offerings included blue elves the progeny admirably referred to as Smurfs and an overweight yellow cat.

On a vote of 2-0, we returned to the mutants and consummated a purchase.

The child assures me, and he is a scholar to the core, that his selection of materials ensures his reaching new frontiers in the educational process. I don't see how this can be true.

I am not yet ready to accept this brave new world of learning without benefit of Big Chief tablets.

EPA proposes new fish-waste standards

To protect Magic Valley streams and rivers

By HAL BERNSTON
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — In December 1982, state Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, on a routine tour of the Magic Valley trout industry, caught a glimpse of the unexpected.

Arriving at a large Hagerman Valley trout hatchery, he watched a crew of workers, much mused, at goosy trout wastes directly into the Snake River, a flagrant violation of the 1972 Federal Clean Water Act.

The fish wastes urged the river a sickly green, about a third of the way across its width and about a half-mile downstream, he recalls.

The illegal fish-waste flush has been a fairly common occurrence in recent years, as federal and state efforts to monitor pollution have been plagued by inadequate enforcement, a confused permit system and lack of funding.

Next week, at public hearings in Twin Falls and Buhl, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency officials will unveil the details of a major new federal effort to clean up the state's trout industry. This effort includes a proposed new permit system, with tougher water-quality standards and a renewed commitment to enforce these standards.

The EPA's new program should be welcome news to fishermen tired of stepping knee-deep into fish waste as they wade through certain stretches of Billingsley Creek, to water-front homeowners who complain about trout wastes deposited on their property and to environmental groups concerned about the long-term impacts of trout-waste pollution on the Thousand Springs area.

The EPA's efforts may also be appreciated by many who manage the area's trout farms and hatcheries.

Four trout industry officials, in a meeting with Noh last week, said they hope the new regulations will put an end to the chaos of recent years, during which 39 hatcheries and fish farms operated for more than 24 months on expired permits.

The officials — Dave Erickson of Clear Springs Trout Co.; Tim O'Keefe, a Rangen Co. trout nutrition specialist; Steven Bright, a Blue Lakes Trout Co. manager; and Harold Ransing, a state Fish and Game hatchery official — believe that most members of their industry are doing a good job of trying to curb the amount of waste injected into public waters. But they hope the EPA will crack down on the minority of operators who routinely flush untreated wastes directly into Magic Valley rivers and streams.

They also want to see the new standards set at levels they feel are practical down on the water. They say they may not be able to meet consistently.

"We're not the J.R. Ewings of Idaho," Bright says. "We're not stripmining the springs. It benefits us to clean the water because we can raise more fish."

One sore spot with industry representatives contacted by The Times-News is the EPA's proposed purity standard — measured in terms of suspended solids — set for water leaving the fish raceways.

This water, according to the proposed regulation, must not exceed 5 milligrams of suspended solids per liter of water. Slightly higher levels are set for settling-pond outflows.

The industry representatives say they would like to see those standards relaxed a bit.

"The data doesn't seem to support the discharge recommendations. No one has demonstrated that we can obtain this level using current technology," Erickson says.

EPA official Harold Geren says his agency is willing to listen to trout industry comments on the proposed standards and be "somewhat flexible" in setting the final regulations. Geren also will have to deal with citizen and environmental groups that have fought bitter battles with some trout companies in years past.

Randall Ford, a Hagerman Valley resident who makes documentary films, says he would like to see "a complete study of the river to determine the long-term effects of nutrient-loading from fish wastes."

"Historically, Snake River water has been polluted upstream by natural causes and agriculture," Ford says. "The Thousand Springs added

Using a vacuum is one way to clean up hatchery waste

By HAL BERNSTON
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — The best way to understand the dynamism of handling fish waste is to picture one of these plastic-bubble "paperweights" that enclose wintry Christmas scenes.

When you shake the paperweight, the snow particles are stirred up from the bottom and suspended in the liquid. Leave the bubble alone for awhile, and the particles settle back to the bottom.

Fish waste particles act in much the same way.

When wastes are stirred from the bottom, they float in the water in a suspended state. In this form, they are extremely difficult to "capture."

But left alone, the wastes settle to the bottom, where they can be handled more easily.

This settling action is the key ingredient in waste treatment for both the concrete raceways and the ponds used in the trout industry.

Many of the smaller trout operations simply allow the fish wastes to settle to the bottom of the ponds. The slow-moving, small amount of water leaving the ponds then is relatively free of waste.

The ponds offer a minimum-maintenance way to raise fish, one batch at a time. But the concentration of fish in the ponds must be kept relatively low, disease can sometimes be a major problem and most must be dredged periodically.

From a pollution standpoint, the trouble with these operations comes at harvest time, when the muck from the bottom is stirred up and the outflow filled with solids. The new EPA regulations will require farm ponds to develop detailed harvest plans, designed to minimize the water pollution these operations cause.

The Hagerman Valley hatchery operated by the state Department of Fish and Game harnesses the settling action of the slow-moving ponds to help clean the water that runs through its 10 raceways.

The hatchery, which produces some 450,000 pounds of fish each year, uses crystal-clear water from a Riley Creek spring.

The water, jokes state Fish and Game Director Harold Ransing, "is the kind that Californians would kill for."

The water provides the life-giving oxygen that the fish depend on for their survival. But as it flows down the sloping concrete raceways, it

Times News photo/DOO DELASHA/ITT

The fish don't seem to mind as the floor of a raceway is vacuumed by Stella Wells picks up fecal matter, metabolic wastes and small amounts of feed wastes.

Most of this material ends up at the bottom of the raceway, where it is swept out into an outflow stream that empties into a large settling pond.

Unlike the stark setting ponds of some industries, this pond is a pleasant place to visit. Mallard, canvas-back and redhead ducks, as well as geese, and cools, frequent the artificial pond. Fishermen also flock to its banks since it is full of "escaped" trout from the hatchery. A series of three wooden structures slow the water flow through the pond, giving the solids the time they need to settle. The $30,000 pond was built in 1975, and it has not needed to be

All Magic Valley counties will hold budget hearings Tuesday

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Taxpayers in all areas of the Magic Valley will have a final opportunity Tuesday to protest or question their county's 1984 budget.

Under Idaho law, counties must hold final hearings on their budgets on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in September. Although the hours differ, all Magic Valley counties will hold hearings Tuesday, before the various county commissions.

With only one exception, Cassia County, the budgets for fiscal year 1984, which begins Oct. 1, are up, in large part due to the skyrocketing cost of indigents' medical bills. The Legislature has allowed counties to tax outside the One Percent Initiative limitations to meet these demands, since state law also requires counties to pay the medical bills of their indigents.

Lincoln County Clerk Linda Stevenson says her county is budgeting $70,000 for indigent bills in the coming year, more than double the $32,000 allowed this year.

"We may not need it, but we have found out if we do, we had better have it," she says.

The Lincoln County budget hearing will begin at 10 a.m. in the commissioners' meeting room of the Courthouse.

The Twin Falls County commissioners will conduct their budget hearing throughout the day, beginning at 10 a.m. in the county judicial building.

This year's $4.82 million budget for Twin Falls County is up about 16.9 percent and allows for a 15 percent county salary increase. It also carries a $555,500 indigent budget, compared to $165,500 last year.

In Jerome, where the three commissioners are struggling to put the county's books in the "black," the hearing on a bare-bones $3 million budget will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the commissioners' office. The 1984 figure is about 7.5 percent higher than last year.

In Jerome County, the indigent fund for 1984 has been increased to $104,735, from $37,000 this year. To help balance the budget, the commissioners have frozen the salaries of county workers, and they have ordered three job reductions.

Attorney Greg Fuller, who is representing the county workers in their effort to win pay increases or other benefits, has indicated he plans to attend the hearing.

Other Magic Valley budget hearings set for Tuesday are:

• Blaine County's hearing on a slightly increased budget will begin at 10 a.m. at the Courthouse.

• Minidoka County will hold its hearing at 10 a.m. at the Courthouse in Rupert.

• Camas County will begin its hearing at 2 p.m. in Fairfield. The budget tentatively has been set at $647,180, compared to $563,605 last year.

• In Cassia County, the hearing will begin at 10 a.m. in the commissioners' chambers. The total budget for Cassia County is down slightly this year.

• In Gooding County, the hearing on a $4.28 million regular budget, plus a $174,000 federal revenue-sharing budget will begin at 10 a.m. also in the commissioners' office in the Courthouse.

Gooding County will host health fair this Thursday

By LUCY OSBORNE
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — The Gooding Health Fair, sponsored by the Gooding County Memorial Hospital and Auxiliary, will be held this Thursday.

It will run from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the War Memorial Hall in Gooding.

The fair will be staffed by some 50 volunteers, says Myrt Myers, who's heading the event. Half of the help is coming from the medical profession.

"Our doctors are very supportive in volunteering their time for consultation," she says.

"The main purpose of a health fair is to educate people and teach them to be responsible for their health. The primary focus is educational," Myers says.

The health fair is free with the exception of the blood-chemistry test, which will cost $25, and a chest X-ray, which will cost $25, half the price of the hospital's regular charge for a chest X-ray, she says. Both tests are optional.

Tests offered during the health fair include: blood pressure, anemia, diabetes, hearing, blood chemistry, glaucoma, nutrition, a breast examination and chest X-ray. Those taking the blood-chemistry test are required to fast for 12 hours beforehand.

Advancement registration is not necessary, Myers says. Sign-language interpreters will be available for the deaf, as will a Spanish interpreter, she says.

The testing is open to anyone 18 and older.

"Our health fair last year was a tremendous success. We felt we had a lot to offer in the way of health education to the people who took advantage of it. We had between 300 and 400 people last year, and with the interest already shown this year, we are shooting for 500 people," Myers says.

Square dancing has become an international 'language'

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

EDEEN — "Of all the places around the world, that was the place where they couldn't speak much English and there were more women than men."

The speaker was talking about Israel. But what he was trying to communicate to the Israelis didn't have anything to do with the politics or wars of the region.

What he was teaching was square dancing, America's folk dance that caller Vaughn Parrish says is spreading throughout the world.

Parrish and his wife, Jean, both 58, have traveled across the United States, Canada, Europe and the Middle East, teaching American servicemen, American oil families and natives of many of foreign countries how to square dance.

The two were at Anderson's Camp near Eden on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, teaching classes and calling dances with the help of Deeto residents Dick and Eileen Fuqua.

Today, they are in Wallawa, Ore., where Mr. Parrish is pulling on a week-long callers' college.

Parrish gives testimony to the spread of square dancing throughout the world by relating his experiences in Germany, where he has taught callers and dancers.

On his first trip to Germany, he taught a group that was composed of about 90 percent American servicemen. The next time, the group was about 50 percent American, 50 percent German. And the last time he was there, in 1980, "The only people we could talk to were the people we were staying with," he says.

Square dancing's growth has prompted the creation of an international association of square-dance callers, called Callerlab, to direct the quality and uniformity of calling and dancing.

The group, of which Parrish is a past member of the board of governors, oversees the certification of all callers throughout the world, of which there are some 9,000, he says. Parrish traces the beginnings of square dancing to the traditional line and circle dances the French and English brought over to the American colonies.

As the certification of callers spread, the exact memory of these dances was lost, and whenever groups of people got together, they would get a fiddle and do what they could remember of the old dances.

Finally, Parrish says, it got down to the current four couples.

In the 1920s and 1930s, square dancing got a bad name because of drinking and drunkenness. "All the dances ended up in a brawl," he says. "Because of the rowdiness, the dance became less popular and faded away, he says."

Then, following World War II, Lloyd "Pappy" Shaw is credited with reviving the art and bringing it back into the social mainstream.

"We credit him (Shaw) for taking square dancing when it had died out and putting it in the barns and streets, and reviving it," Parrish says.

It was from Shaw that the parents of Jean Parrish learned to dance in 1947 in Colorado Springs, Colo. They brought the dance back home to Childress, Texas, and to Vaughn and Jean.

The two began teaching and calling among their friends. "We literally kicked back the rug in the living room," Parrish remembers. The Parrishes moved to Colorado in 1950. There, Mr. Parrish called for clubs and taught at the University of Colorado at Boulder, through its recreation program. It was then that the Parrishes began traveling and teaching.

Their travels have taken them to every state and Canadian province, and eventually to Europe, the Middle East and South America.

Parrish also credits World War II with helping spread square dancing around the world. American servicemen, stationed in the Pacific and Europe, took the dance with them and welcomed teachers such as Parrish on visits.

Soon, the natives became caught up in the dance.

Although he can't always talk with the people on the floor, Parrish says the calls have become a universal language that every square dancer can understand.

Waste

dredged yet.

Many hatcheries, located in narrow canyons or on narrow strips of riverfront property do not have the space to put in large settling ponds. These hatcheries use a vacuum system to suck the solids directly out of the raceways and into small settling ponds.

One of the industry's most advanced vacuum systems is located at Rangen Inc.'s facility, in a canyon setting that uses the headwater springs of Billingsley Creek.

The operation is a combined research center, and hatchery. It features a self-feeding system developed by hatchery manager Lynn Babington that helps reduce waste feed.

A series of plastic, funnel-shaped feeders hang over the raceways. Thin steel rods suspended from the feeders hang into the water. When the fish get hungry, they simply suck the rods, dispelling a plastic disk at the bottom of the feeder and allowing a few grains of feed to fall. The more they nudge, the more they eat. The flurry of white water churned up around the feeders leaves no doubt that fish know how to operate the system.

The heart of the Rangen pollution-control system is a vacuum cleaner that sucks up the waste directly from the raceways and deposits it in a small settling pond.

Babington has borrowed off the bottom 20 percent of each raceway as a settling area. He then periodically vacuums the raceways with a vacuum head attached to a plastic hose, which siphons the "gull" down to the small settling pond.

The settling pond is cleaned once a year.

The water flowing from the spring is reused after time before it empties into Billingsley Creek. But each step of the way it is cleaned with the vacuum system. And Rangen Co. official Tim O'Keefe says this not only makes downstream users happy, it also makes good economic sense.

If the water is not cleaned properly, it cannot be reused by the hatchery without causing disease and other problems, he says.

According to O'Keefe, the key to proper water quality does not lie only in the official cleaning of each raceway to measure suspended solids. More importantly, he says, inspectors need to make sure that proper handling systems are in place at all trout hatcheries — and that they are being used.

Standards

essentially a new river of clean water to the Snake.

"Why should the industry be allowed to degrade these public waters that they don't own?" he asks.

The new permit system, which the EPA hopes will get it troubled monitoring program back on track, has been a long time coming.

More than a decade has elapsed since the passage of the Clean Water Act, which first gave the federal government wide-ranging authority to regulate waste discharges into public waters.

Following passage of the act, most state governments developed their own programs to implement the federal legislation, delegating the EPA to a supporting role in the enforcement procedure.

But the Idaho Legislature has refused repeatedly to fund state enforcement programs. This has forced the Seattle-based EPA regional office to take a lead role in enforcing the program.

The initial permits issued by the EPA were based on a 1974 document that was put together with little on-site study. Agency officials had only infrequent trips to Idaho, relying largely on reports made by now-retired state Health and Welfare Department Inspector Alex Schaefer, who worked full time on monitoring the industry.

By 1978, most of the initial permits had expired. It was not until November 1982, that the EPA bothered to issue a compliance order to legalize the continued operation of the hatcheries and fish farms.

Throughout the past decade, enforcement has been lax. Schaefer rarely sought to fine trout hatcheries that failed to comply with permit requirements. And after 1978, with the permits legally expired, the job became even more sticky.

"All he could really hope to do was to shame them into compliance," says Rangen Co.'s O'Keefe. "But some operators, faced with shame or money, will take shame any day. Hopefully, with the new compliance system, an operator will either comply or wind up in court."

In 1982, the situation began to change, as both the industry and the EPA sought to develop enforceable water-quality standards for a new permit system. This year, both the industry and JRB Associates, a Bellevue, Wash., firm under contract to the EPA, carried out a new series of water-quality studies at selected trout hatcheries and farms.

Geren says he will try to make sure that the new standards developed from the studies are more than just paper regulations.

"We fully intend to have a more active enforcement program," he says. "The state man will be backed up by some of our own people as well."

Geren says that the EPA has the authority to seek court action to levy fines of up to $10,000 a day for persistent violations of permit standards and up to $25,000 for willful violations.

However, the EPA, Noh and Idaho Conservation League director Pat Ford all agree that a comprehensive state program would offer the best enforcement.

"An adequately funded state program makes sense from every point of view," Ford says. "But the question is, does the Legislature have the commitment to fund such a program. I'm not sure that exists at the moment."

Obituaries

William E. Blackwell
 BIRTH — William E. Blackwell, 71, died Saturday afternoon at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, following a sudden illness.

He was born in Boise on July 18, 1912, he attended schools in Boise and Twin Falls before moving in 1938 to California, where he remained until 1968.

He had worked as a supervisor at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Yountville, Calif., for 32 years. He retired in 1968 and returned to Buhl, where he had lived for 15 years before recently moving to Twin Falls.

He married Jeanne Sharp at Reno on Oct. 17, 1964.

Mr. Blackwell belonged to CSEA of California and the Salvation Army.

Surviving are: his wife of Twin Falls; a son, William L. Blackwell of San Rafael, Calif.; four daughters, Dorothy Callahan of Saint Helena, Calif., Billy Munk of Orland, Calif., Elizabeth Johnson of Arleta, N.M., and Sandra Blackwell of Boise; three sisters, Ivy Spood of Seal Beach, Calif., and Edna Campbell of the Dalles, Ore.; 16 grandchildren; and 20 great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be held Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the Chapel of the Valley in Saint Helena, Calif. Burial will be in Saint Helena Cemetery.

The Hopkins-Buhl Funeral Chapel is in charge of local arrangements.

Hazel E. Walston
 GOODING — Hazel E. Walston, 77, of Gooding, died Saturday morning at the Presbyterian-Nursing Home in Ontario, Ore.

Born Jan. 21, 1906, in Ryder, N.D., she graduated from nursing school in Ken-mare, N.D. She later worked as a private-duty nurse for several years before coming in 1930 to Gooding, where she worked for Gooding Memorial Hospital for five years.

She married Raymond Walston on Oct. 2, 1935 in Seattle. They lived in Shoshone until 1963, when they moved to Gooding, where she again worked for Gooding Memorial Hospital. She later worked at the state tuberculosis hospital in Gooding from 1964 to 1970.

Mrs. Walston was a member of the First Methodist Church of Gooding; the Order of the Eastern Star in Shoshone and the PEO.

Her husband died in August 1982.

Survivors include: a son, Robert R. Walston of Boise; a daughter, Marilyn Peterson of Halfway, Ore.; two sisters, Emma Larson of Plala, N.D., and Jennie Stahberg of Kenmare; three brothers, Palmer Skar of Shoshone, John Skar of Tacoma, Wash., and Art Skar of Wyoming; five grandchildren; and a great-grandchild.

The funeral will be held Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. at Demaray's Gooding Chapel, with the Rev. Delbert Remaley officiating. Burial will be in Elmwood Cemetery at Gooding.

Friends may call at the funeral home on Tuesday from 1 to 7 p.m.

The family suggests that memorial contributions be made to the First Methodist Church of Gooding or the Presbyterian Nursing Home in Ontario.

Helen I. Dupuis
 KETCHUM — Helen I. Dupuis, 57, of Ketchum, died Saturday morning at Moritz Community Hospital in Sun Valley.

Born March 16, 1926, in Oakland, Calif.,

she married Floyd Dupuis in 1952 in Ketchum.

She had worked as a cashier for the Sun Valley Co. for the past 10 winters and for the Big Wood Golf Course in Ketchum the past three summers.

Mrs. Dupuis was a member of Our Lady of Snows Catholic Church in Sun Valley and was the past president of the Catholic Council of Women and the Wood River Ladies Golf Association.

Surviving are: her mother, Margaret Irish of Oakland, Calif.; two sons, Paul Dupuis and Alvin Dupuis, both of Ketchum; a daughter, Michelle Caldwell of Kemmerer, Wyo.; a sister, Peggy Call of Santa Rosa, Calif.; and three grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband, her father, a brother, and a daughter.

Rosary will be said at 7:30 p.m. today, and the funeral mass will be held at noon Tuesday, both at Our Lady of the Snows Catholic Church, with the Rev. Father Joseph Ringwood and Deacon Ben Kretzing officiating. Burial will be in Ketchum Cemetery.

The Wood River Chapel of Halley is in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that memorial contributions be made to the Sun Valley Junior Hockey Association, Box 1293, Sun Valley, 83353, or the American Cancer Society, in care of Rose-Mallory of Halley.

Armed robber hits store in Wendell

WENDELL — An armed robber and his accomplice are still at large after holding up a feed and supply store in Wendell.

At about 8:10 p.m. Saturday, a man entered the Lemmes Feed and Supply store, at 564 S. Idaho St., and demanded the store's money. Wendell police Chief Mike Tambini said Sunday.

After taking the money from the store's cash register, the man walked out and got in a car, where an accomplice was waiting. By Sunday, the amount of money taken had not been determined, Tambini said.

The man carried a four-inch, blue revolver during the holdup. He was described as about 5-foot-7 and in his early twenties. He had shoulder-length black hair and a beard. He wore denim pants and jacket, Tambini said.

The car was light blue, but the make, year and license-plate number were not known, the chief said.

Dump site owner adopts safeguards

GRAND VIEW (UPI) — Officials of EnviroSafe Services say they have taken steps to ease fears about hazardous-waste disposal at the site, while state overseers say they will increase the frequency of inspections at the dump.

EnviroSafe spokesman Rick Marton said the firm is lining its trenches with a plastic-like material, partly in anticipation of a proposed federal law requiring all waste disposal sites to do so, and last week re-routed deliveries away from two Marling schools.

The state Bureau of Hazardous Wastes will make unannounced inspections of the site about once a month, up from about twice a year, Director Robert Olson said.

EnviroSafe, about two miles south of the Snake River near Grand View, is Idaho's only commercial hazardous waste dump. It is one of 104 areas around the state that officials will study in the coming year to determine what wastes are present and to test for evidence of groundwater contamination.

Of the 104 sites to be tested, the four locations with the highest potential of becoming a health hazard were added or proposed for addition to the Environmental Protection Agency's "Superfund" clean-up list last week.

Placed on the list were the Bunker Hill mining complex in Kellogg and Arco's oil recycling operations in Rathdrum. Proposed for the program were Pacific Recycling and Union-Pacific Railroad sludge pond in Pocatello.

Welfare budget skyrockets

WALLACE (UPI) — Shoshone County commissioners say property taxes need to be increased by 191 percent next year to help the county maintain welfare services for residents suffering from the area's economic slump.

Commissioner George Giesler said the panel has proposed the levy increase to raise $1.8 million in property-tax revenue for the upcoming fiscal year. The last round of taxes brought in $619,500.

Even with the hike, the county may still have to cut welfare expenditures by $35,000 in fiscal 1984, he said. At the same time, a continued rise is expected in the number of people seeking assistance.

"I don't know the count, but there is a tremendous number of people no longer receiving unemployment," the commissioner said. "What do they do for fuel? What do they do for the kids? And to what extent do we ask the taxpayers to pick up the bill?"

Commissioner Fred Cantamessa said the property-tax hike is needed if the county is to meet serious problems resulting from deeper welfare cuts.

"You can't have people lying on the street starving to death," he said. Giesler said the proposed welfare budget for next year does not include reductions in support for indigents or in programs to aid people with medical, transportation, fuel and rent problems.

The cuts include elimination of the $12,000 in support the county gave in its last budget to the Silver Valley Alcohol Rehabilitation Center, commissioners said.

"We feel the program was going down the tubes because of the lack of federal government relief," Giesler said.

He said the state demands that counties accept applications for assistance from all indigents with unpayable medical bills.

"We are the last resort for many individuals," he said.

Report late from sheriff

ST. MARIES (UPI) — A Benewah County official says Sheriff Bob Kirts irresponsibly delayed notifying the Federal Aviation Administration about a missing plane that had crashed, killing three people.

Civil Defense Director Rich Boggs says he will ask the County Commission to investigate charges that Kirts conducted his own aerial search last week before notifying the FAA that the plane was missing.

"I can't fault a person for jumping in a plane to go out and look, but if there was prior knowledge on the part of a county official charged with public safety who didn't get the word out, that is an irresponsible act and in my opinion, dereliction of duty," Boggs said.

The plane failed to return Aug. 28 from a big-game scouting trip. It was discovered Monday by Civil Air Patrol planes. Rescuers found three St. Maries residents dead in the wreckage. A fourth, Jamie Wilks, 11, was alive but injured.

Kirts said he searched for the aircraft for an hour before notifying the FAA it was overdue.

"A friend of the family called at about 6:30 or 7 p.m. (Sunday) and told us the plane was overdue," Kirts said.

Kirts said he followed standard procedure by checking with local airports to see if the plane had landed somewhere other than its destination. He said he then checked an emergency landing strip near Dworshak Reservoir "just in case they had put down there."

"In effect, only about one hour passed from the time I learned about the flight being overdue until I called flight service in Spokane (about 8 p.m.)," he said.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day and evening when whatever you do with the lighter side of life — pleasure, entertainment, romance and adornment problems can be the means by which most everyone can be successful.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Show more devotion for the one you love and increase mutual happiness and then plan very constructively for the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Situations arise that give you the opportunity to channel your capabilities in the right direction and get fine results.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Put a little personal touch to any communication or letter writing and get better results than in the past.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) This is a good day for making collections or gaining other benefits, so get an early start on such and get good results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are radiant and magnetic today and can easily get your points across to others and be happy. Be as outgoing and social as you like.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show more devotion to your mate as well as your friends and get better results with them. Stop being so reticent.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to gain more favor from those you consider to be your closest friends and deepen the relationships.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good day to show others on whom you depend that you are loyal and a good worker. A raise could be in the offing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan that trip that can help you to expand or for some other good purpose. Go to some wise person for good ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Follow your intuition and yolk know best how to handle matters at hand and also work up new business.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A bigwig will back you in some venture that is worthwhile and practical. If you approach wisely,

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make your surroundings more inviting and get an early start on this so that you can feel more satisfied and work better in them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those charming young persons who can advance very quickly in the career and also have a happy personal life. One who can make the family happy during earl years and should have a very fine education.

What's what

Young fellow, if you're thinking of giving up your bachelorhood but don't have any particular bride-in-mind — say, not really, yourself, off? A Baltimore man did that. Not recently. In 1901, it was. He sold 2,000 tickets at $5 apiece with himself as the grand prize. Why let your ego be a handicap? Make it pay.

When you lightly compress your tongue between your lips and say "ah," you damply deliver what's known in the vernacular as a Bronx cheer. It has a highbrow name, too: "a bilabiodiffricative."

GANDY DANCERS

Q. Why are the men on railroad track repair gangs known as "gandy dancers?"

A. Inventor of one sort of shovel was a man named Gandy. When a crewman tamps ballast unto place along newly laid track, using such a shovel, he bends, steps, hops, contorts in a manner that merits such nomenclature.

Q. I'll bet you a quarter on the corner, Louis, that they don't play baseball games in Japan.

A. Won't bet, sir. Merely a matter of language. They say they play baseball matches over there, not games.

KURALT'S GIFT

TV's gifted Charles Kurall got much from Aristotle, I think. That greek believed the seat of intelligence was in the heart, and Kurall's perception tends to make some of the rest of us believe it, too.

The typical hostility in Ireland 250 years ago usually kept on hand a pair of dueling pistols for the benefit of combustible travelers who'd failed to bring their own.

Rarely do buildings burn down in La Paz, Bolivia. At 12,000 feet, there's not enough oxygen to feed fast fires.

Head music club

Anniversaries

Mr. & Mrs. C. A. Buffington

TWIN FALLS—Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Buffington were honored recently at their home in observance of their golden wedding anniversary.

Buffington and the former Mildred Haynes were married Aug. 5, 1933. They have lived in Twin Falls for many years.

The event, attended by immediate family and relatives, was hosted by their two children, Barbara Jasper of Olympia, Wash., and Dr. Charles Buffington of Norris, Tenn., and their spouses.

The Buffingtons have four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

JEROME—Charles and Betty Otto will be honored at an open house Sept. 11 in observance of their golden wedding anniversary.

Friends and relatives are invited to call between 2 and 5 p.m. at the Jerome United Methodist Church. Otto and the former Betty Tooley were married Sept. 10, 1933. In Jerome and have lived their entire lives in this area. She worked for more than 20 years in the school lunch program, the last few years as supervisor. He farmed near Jerome. The reception is being hosted by the couple's three children, Darwin Otto of Portland, Greg Otto of Seattle and Gary Otto of Jerome, and their families. They have seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira M. Hall

KIMBERLY—Mr. and Mrs. Ira M. Hall will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at an open house Sunday, Sept. 11, at their home, 341 S. Birch Street in Kimberly.

Hall also will celebrate his 85th birthday.

Beef prices down

DENVER (UPI)—A monthly 19-city survey of supermarket beef prices indicated the national average dropped again in August.

The study by the National Cattlemen's Association showed the national average price of five cuts was $2.44 per pound, compared with $2.49 a pound in July. It was the second consecutive month of decreasing beef prices.

Salvador guerrillas hit city

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Leftist guerrillas destroyed bridges, electricity pylons and buildings Sunday, claiming they killed and wounded 300 soldiers in a raid on an eastern city that marked the start of a new rebel offensive.

Thousands of rebels of the Farabundo Martí National Liberation Front withdrew after a 10-hour attack when they fought their way into the heart of San Miguel, a city of 100,000 people 69 miles southeast of San Salvador.

Guerrilla Radio Venceremos broadcast a report from rebel Cmdr. Joaquin Villalobos that 300 soldiers were killed or wounded in an artillery barrage during the massive assault.

"We have surrounded the biggest garrison of the armed forces, causing them more than 300 casualties, destroyed three of the most important bridges in the country and destroyed two of the biggest coffee mills of the principle oligarchic families," Villalobos said.

An army spokesman said late Sunday "indiscriminate bombing" by guerrilla artillery shells killed "an undetermined number of civilians."

A communique issued by the Defense Ministry said most of the shelling came from 120-mm mortars set up a little more than a mile from San Miguel.

Rebel Radio Venceremos said the fierce attack on the city of San Miguel was the first strike of "our new national offensive: independence, liberty and democracy for El Salvador."

Radio Venceremos also claimed that captured soldiers said Col. Jaime Flores was wounded. Flores is commander of the four easternmost provinces of El Salvador, the center of some of the heaviest fighting of the war.

But an army spokesman said he had talked to Flores after the fighting stopped around midday, and that reports the commander was wounded were "a big lie."

Chad rebels ready for offensive

NDJAMENA, Chad (UPI) — Ousted President Goukouni Weddeye said Sunday his Libyan-backed rebel forces held a key eastern town and warned the insurgents were ready to confront French troops backing the Chadian government.

Goukouni spoke at a news conference Sunday at Bardai, in the Libyan-occupied Aouzou strip of northern Chad, that dispelled reports he had disappeared or been killed. His remarks were reported on French television.

Government officials said Chadian troops mopped up pockets of resistance in eastern Chad Sunday, two days after inflicting a heavy defeat on Goukouni's forces.

The operations were carried out near the eastern towns of Oum-Chalouba and Kalati, which came under attack Friday by what government officials said was a 3,000-man rebel force.

But at the news conference, Goukouni insisted his troops held the town of Oum-Chalouba after Friday's battle.

The rebel leader, ousted from power last year by current President Hissene Habre, also warned his troops were prepared to fight French soldiers "if they were deployed across his route."

It was Goukouni's first public appearance since government troops temporarily retook the northern oasis of Faya-Largeau last month. Rumors had spread he had been killed, captured or made prisoner by Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi.

The towns are 400 miles northeast of Ndjamena and about 60 miles north of the nearest French positions in the region at Arada and Biltine.

Western diplomats have said the rebel force loyal to Goukouni numbered no more than 1,000 and indicated that the one-day attack did not necessarily presage a sustained new drive southward.

Swedes after another sub

KARLSKRONA, Sweden (UPI) — A Defense Ministry spokesman said Sunday the search for an intruding foreign submarine near the top secret Karlskrona naval base in southern Sweden would continue as long as necessary.

"We are going to wait for as long as it takes. Five minutes, 14 days, months if necessary," said spokesman Bertil Lagerwall.

"We are going to try, with all the possibilities available to us, to bring this or these submarines to the surface."

Swedish naval forces dropped 13 depth charges in three salvos Saturday about a half mile from the Karlskrona naval base, the defense said.

The salvos were released after "a wealth of both military and civilian sightings" indicating a possible submarine, including periscope sightings and sonar soundings, Lagerwall said.

Four of the Big Sky Conference's eight teams opened the 1983 football season this weekend, and only Weber State saved the league from a total embarrassment.

The Wildcats roared out to a 33-0 lead and went on to beat Southwest Minnesota State 33-21 Saturday night in the Big Sky's only win.

"It kind of went the way we wanted it to. We were able to get ahead early and use a lot of players, even in the first half. This experience will help our reserves later in the season," said Weber State coach Mike Price.

In other games Saturday, Boise State lost 13-10 to Fullerton State, Montana State was beaten 27-7 by Washington State, and Nevada-Reno fell 28-18 at Nevada-Las Vegas.

Price said Southwest Minnesota's passing game gave his Wildcats "a lot of different patterns to adjust to. I think that will help us an awful lot when we start Big Sky play."

The Wildcats got the kind of balanced attack Price had been hoping for, piling up 221 yards passing and 190 on the ground behind the play of quarterback Tim Bernal and running back Dennis Rogan.

"Dennis played as well as he's played since he came here," said Price. The senior had 74 yards rushing and one touchdown and another 72 yards in receptions despite playing only the first quarter and one series in the third.

And Bernal passed for 156 yards and one touchdown, a 7-yard scoring pass

Boise State had just tied the score 10-all late in the fourth quarter against Fullerton State when the Titans mounted the game's final scoring drive that gave them the win over the Broncos.

Greg Steinke's second field goal of the game, from 51 yards out with just 14 seconds left, boosted Fullerton State to the victory. The Titans only touchdown came on cornerback Lee Miner's 76-yard interception return.

Purves takes Valley Am lead

By LARRY HOOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For a guy who has posted two consecutive sub-par rounds, Jim Purves of Twin Falls thinks par could be the happiest score of his career.

Purves, who has finished second four times in the Magic Valley Amateur, takes a three-stroke lead over Steve Ballard into the final round today at Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course.

Purves tacked a 67 on to his opening 66 while Ballard, who carded a 64 Saturday, moved up to 72. Lynn Reiersgard of Jackpot had an even par 68 for a 137, four strokes off the pace, while Doyle Dugger and Perry Hanchey, both Twin Falls, shot 139 and Kevin Packard had a 140.

"I'm thinking of a 68 or under," said Purves in looking at today's round. "That way it would take a 64 or 65 to beat me."

See more golf results on B3

Purves said the key to success thus far has been "getting up and down pretty well anytime I missed the green. I've only had one three-putt in two days."

Ballard, who had spent all of August shooting 60 to 64 on the course, readily admitted that "carrying the lead is tough." Ballard said nothing went particularly well from tee to green but said that the putting was difficult — a common complaint throughout the field on the lightning-fast greens.

The overriding factor of Sunday was that, with the exception of the second flight where Bruce Mecham of Twin Falls picked up 16 strokes from Saturday's round with a 70, no flight had a better score.

Purves' 67 paced the championship flight while Reiersgard had an even-par 68.

Twin Falls Muni continued to be tough on six-time champion Ken Cromwell of Ogden and Pocatello's Dave Molitor, making his first appearance in the tournament. "I've had 38 and 39 putts in the last two days," lamented Cromwell. "I feel like I'm hitting the ball as well as anytime I've led this tournament. But I can't get it in the hole."

Molitor, who has won four of five tournaments this summer, said he's hopeful of making a little better showing today.

"The putts started dropping later in the round today so maybe I can score a little better tomorrow," he said.

David Driscoll of Twin Falls won the championship flight derby.

Flight leaders include:

Bad start for Elway

By POHLA SMITH
United Press International

PITTSBURGH — Inconsistency and an elbow injury marred the pro debut of Denver's million-dollar rookie quarterback John Elway Sunday, but veteran backup Steve Deberg saved the day.

The 14-10 defeat to Denver was just the fourth home opener loss for Pittsburgh in 14 seasons.

Tapped as the third quarter starter after Elway sat down at halftime with cumulative bruises to his throwing elbow, Deberg led the Broncos on a 16-play, 59-yard touchdown drive capped by a 2-yard scoring pass to Ron Egloff with 2:54 left in the game.

The third-and-two play was of Deberg's own design in the huddle. It called for Egloff to hold his block long enough to throw off the Steeler defense before slanting left for the reception.

"Deberg made a great play on that touchdown," said Coach Dan Reeves. "This is the first time I've ever beaten Pittsburgh, going back to my own playing days. It was a big win and I'm proud of us, the way we hung in there."

Elway was at the helm when Denver scored its first touchdown on a 1-yard run by Sammy Winder, who rushed 36 yards, early in the second quarter. But neither Elway nor Deberg played well against the Steeler defense.

Deberg, playing the entire second half, completed just 4-of-14 passes for 35 yards, including the touchdown pass. He was sacked three times for 22 yards.

Elway, a Stanford product picked first in the NFL draft last spring, completed just 1-of-8 passes for 13 yards during the first two quarters.

Under heavy pressure from the Steelers' young and revamped defense, Elway threw one interception, was called once for intentional grounding and lost a fumble to Steeler lineman Tom Beasley. Elway also was sacked four times for 26 yards.

Final statistics showed Denver netted just 1 yard total passing on the day.

"John had some rough spots," Reeves said. "He's still learning. But if he is ready to play, he'll start next week."

Elway proclaimed himself satisfied with his effort. "I played a heck of a lot better this week than last week," Elway said. "I think I did everything I could do in the first half."

"I was nervous, but not out of control," he added. "I got a lot of pressure but I got rid of the ball. I didn't get tripped too many times."

Sunday's opener marked the first time since 1974 that the Steelers had started without Terry Bradshaw, who continues to recover from off-season surgery on his passing elbow.

Ovett regains record in the 1,500 meters

RIETI, Italy (UPI) — Steve Ovett said Sunday the new world 1,500 meters record he set at an Italian international track meet might have been even faster if it hadn't been for gusty winds.

The Briton clocked 3 minutes, 30.77 seconds, breaking Sydney Marree's mark of 3:31.24 set a week ago in Cologne, West Germany. The South African-born Marree toppled Ovett's three-year-old mark of 3:31.38.

American David Mack led the pack of 11 runners through the first three laps Sunday before dropping out. Ovett took command from then on and moved far ahead of the pack.

"It worked marvelously with Mack as a pacemaker," an excited Ovett said after setting his new mark. "But if the wind hadn't been so strong, I might have gotten the time down to 3:30."

"I hope the record will stand for the rest of the year," Ovett added.

Can WAC digest Falcons' wishbone?

By United Press International

If there is a formula for stopping Air Force's vaunted wishbone offense, fellow Western Athletic Conference coaches can forget about asking Colorado State's Leon Fuller for its ingredients.

Fuller's Rams earned the league's respect for thwarting the Falcons' attack last year, handing a 21-11 defeat to a team that went on to whip Notre Dame and finish the year fourth nationally in rushing, ninth in total offense and 14th in scoring.

But Saturday, in the season opener for both the Rams and the Falcons, Air Force proved once is not enough.

The Falcons, with quarterback Marty Louthan directing the wishbone, overran CSU 34-13 to claim an early lead — shared with New Mexico — in this year's race for the WAC title.

Fullback John Kershner and halfback Mike Brown scored two touchdowns each to pace the Falcons. Kershner broke loose on Air Force's second play of the game for a 70-yard TD run and Brown responded with a 69 yard run on the Falcons' next possession from scrimmage.

Kershner scored again in the third period on a 1-yard run to climax an 80-yard drive and Brown scored on a 7-yard run in the fourth period following a 69-yard drive.

The weekend's only other WAC contest, junior quarterback Buddy Kershner's passing and running led New Mexico to a 17-7 victory over Utah in the WAC's first game as a starter for the Lobos.

Funck ran 53 yards for one touchdown and set up a field goal with a 46-yard pass play. He completed four of eight passes for 105 yards and rushed 15 times for 56 net yards.

"I told you that was a damn good quarterback," said Lobos coach Joe Lee Dunn. "He's going to be someone to be reckoned with all year. Funck is a heck of a athlete. We could have started him in the first game last year, but we went with (Dayid) Osborn because he was a senior."

In non-league games Saturday, Walt Goffigan scored three touchdowns to lead Wyoming to a 34-13 win over South Dakota; redshirt freshman quarterback Steve Gage ran 49 yards for a touchdown and threw 10 yards for another to pace Tulsa to a 34-9 victory over San Diego State; and quarterback Kevin Ward rushed for 125 yards and two touchdowns to lead Texas El Paso to a 29-0 victory over New Mexico State.

Brigham Young and Hawaii were idle.

Henning gets warm welcome from Falcons

By United Press International

The Atlanta Falcons "persevered" through a preseason that their offense never got untracked and saw the same situation occur Sunday in the first half of their regular season opener against the Chicago Bears.

But a combination of patience and the throwing arm of Steve Bartkowski finally paid dividends for the Falcons, who rallied for a 20-17 victory over the Bears to give new coach Dan Henning a win in his NFL coaching debut.

Atlanta, which had only three touchdowns in the pre-season, got two from Bartkowski through the air, including a 21-yarder to Alfred Jenkins midway through the fourth quarter to register the victory.

"No, we didn't have much of a pre-season, but I guess now we can say that it didn't matter too much," said Bartkowski, who earlier hit William Andrews on a 23-yard scoring pass in the first quarter. "We stayed with it, however. We persevered and stuck to what we practiced and it finally paid off in that second half."

Henning, the offensive coordinator for the Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins last year, said his team's patience and refusal to take chances paid off in the season-opening win played in temperatures around 100 degrees on the Soldier Field AstroTurf.

"We just had a feeling that if we could maintain field position and stay in position, we'd be okay," Henning said. "We weren't taking chances that would have put us in bad field position."

"We persevered through the pre-season although we didn't score but 10 points on offense. But we made the progress we needed and took the shots when we needed them." Chicago Coach Mike Ditka said the turning point came in the third quarter after the Bears had enjoyed a 10-6 halftime lead.

"The critical period was the third. We had the win but got only one touchdown on the board. We had to get two," Ditka said. "I don't think there was any lack of desire on our part but we played 45 minutes and had no offense or defense in the fourth quarter."

Atlanta took a 13-10 lead on Gerold Riggins' yard touchdown run that was set up by a 25-yard pass to Alfred Jackson. But the Bears' lone touchdown of the second half, a 2-yard run by rookie Anthony Hutchinson, gave Chicago its last lead 17-13 with 2:10 remaining in the third quarter.

The Falcons took the lead for good on the Bartkowski-Jenkins TD with 9:17 remaining in the game to cap an 81-yard, seven play drive that saw the Atlanta quarterback account for 73 yards of the drive.

Los Angeles Rams 16, New York Giants 6

In East Rutherford, N.J., Vince Ferragamo threw a pair of touchdown passes to Mike Barber and Los Angeles revamped defense posted five sacks and forced five turnovers to spark the Rams and rookie Coach John Robinson to a season-opening triumph over the New York Giants.

While Ferragamo was well-protected from New York's defense, missing two injured All-Pro, linebacker Harry Carson and cornerback Mark Hayes, Giants' quarterback Scott Brunner was hounded throughout by a new 3-man front and blitzing linebackers. Despite a 113-yard rushing effort by Rob Carpenter, Giants' Coach Bill Parcells suffered through a frustrating pro debut. Ferragamo found Barber for scoring passes of 8 and 42 yards and rookie Chuck Nelson added a 36-yard field goal for the Rams, 2-7 last year under Ray Malavasi. The Giants were limited to Carpenter's 4-yard TD run that gave them a 6-3 lead early in the second quarter.

The Rams stretched a 10-6 halftime advantage on their first possession of the second half, driving 80 yards in six plays on a march sustained by a running-in-the-penalty penalty against Giants safety Larry Flowers. Ferragamo hit rookie Henry Ellard for 34 yards on first-and-20 and two plays later, with no rush from the Giants, he waited for Barber to clear the middle for a 42-yard score at 2:52. Nelson's conversion attempt was blocked. New Orleans 28, St. Louis 17

In New Orleans, George Rogers rushed for a team-record 206 yards and a pair of third-period touchdowns to lead the New Orleans Saints to victory over St. Louis in their season-opener.

While Rogers was ripping his way through the Cardinal defense, the St. Louis attack spluttered in the second half under the guidance of 39-year-old quarterback Jim Hart, who replaced the injured Neil Lomax. The win was only the third season-opening victory for the Saints in their 17-year history.

New Orleans' first touchdown came on a 9-yard run by Wayne Wilson and the final Saint score was a 35-yard pass from Dave Wilson to Kenny Duckett.

The Cardinals scored an 11-yard pass from Lomax to tight end Doug Marsh, a 16-yard pass from Hart to Pat Tilley and a 47-yard field goal by Neil O'Donoghue.

Murray, Lion defense mail punchless Bucs

By United Press International

Eed Murray, who gave up a career in soccer to play football, has led the Detroit Lions in scoring the past three seasons and gave notice Sunday he intends to do the same this year.

The fourth-year pro out of Tulane kicked field goals of 29, 38 and 48 yards as the Detroit Lions blanked the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 14-0 in their NFL opener.

The Lions scored first midway through the first period when Doug English tackled Jerry Gostein in his end zone for a safety.

Murray missed a 36-yard field goal attempt in the final period.

"I talked myself out of that last one," Murray said. "I was standing there telling myself to direct it and when I do that, I lean everything off to the right. I forgot to tell myself to follow through."

The kick sailed wide right. "It's a little upset but the wind's a little more important right now. I can't be too upset. It's always nice but it really shouldn't come down to me doing it."

But when it does, I feel good doing it." Murray said the three field goals were especially pleasing because he has been bothered by a nagging hip injury.

After Frank Garcia's free kick, the Lions started from their 4-6 and Eric Hipple took Detroit to the Tampa 11 before the drive stalled and Murray kicked his second field goal.

Murray kicked his second field goal halfway through the third period. The Lions had driven from their 39 to the Tampa 21 but a holding penalty sent the Lions back to the 31 and Murray was good from 49 yards for a field goal.

Murray kicked his final field goal in the fourth period after a Lions' drive was stopped at the Tampa 20. Gary Danielson replaced Hipple at the start of the period and engineered the drive from the Detroit 20.

Minnesota's Bill Copece attempted a 57-yard field goal as time ran out in the first period but was short and wide right. It was the longest field goal Copece had attempted. His previous longest try was from 51 yards. He has made three of five from that distance. Minnesota 27, Cleveland 21

In Cleveland, Ted Brown ran for two touchdowns and scored a third on a pass from Tommy Kramer to power the Minnesota Vikings to a triumph over the Cleveland Browns in their season opener.

Kramer rattled the Browns, completing 22-of-33 passes for 198 yards, and Brown rolled up 73 yards on 17 carries and caught six passes for 63 yards.

Cleveland pulled to within three points at 17-14 by driving 72 yards with the opening kickoff of the second half. Paulback Mike Pruitt carried five tacklers into the end zone to score on a 6-yard TD pass from Brian Sipe.

But after the Browns forced Minnesota to make its first punt of the game with 5:47 left in the third quarter, Johnny Davis fumbled a look over on Sipe and the Vikings took over on the Browns' 20. Four plays later, Kramer hit Brown on a 10-yard scoring strike.

The Vikings increased their lead to 27-14 with a 5-play drive, climaxed by a 38-yard field goal by Benny Ricardo late in the third quarter.

Sipe, who completed 15-of-33 for 108 yards, brought the Browns back to 27-21, with three minutes left in the game on a 23-yard TD pass to Willis Adams, his first as a pro.

Rufus Bess picked off a Sipe pass with 50 seconds left to end a late threat that started when the Browns held the Vikings on fourth and inches at the Minnesota 41.

In Houston, David Whitehurst, who sat on the bench while Lyle Dickey had one of the best days in team history, led Green Bay on a 59-yard overtime march to set up Jan Stenerud's 42-yard field goal and lift the Packers to a victory over the Houston Oilers.

Stenerud's kick came 5:55 into overtime and ended a wild game that saw almost 1,000 yards total offense.

Dickey completed the first 18 passes he threw, tossed a club record five touchdowns and finished with 27 completions in 31 tries for 333 yards. But Dickey went to the dressing room with an undisclosed malady before the start of the overtime period.

Whitehurst was called on to direct the team and after Green Bay won the coin toss and received the kickoff, he did a flawless job. He hit rookie Phillip Epps with a key 10-yard, third-down pass at the start of the drive. Stenerud was called on after the Packers failed to convert a first-and-2 situation, leaving the ball at the Oilers' 7.

The overtime period came after Archie Manning and Earl Campbell had helped Houston rally twice in the last five minutes with drives of 61 and 81 yards.

O's open up some daylight in AL East

By United Press International

After a stirring three-game sweep in Minneapolis, the Orioles are flying high atop the Eastern Division standings.

John Shelby singled in two runs in a three-run eighth inning Sunday, helping a 5-1 tie and propelling Baltimore to a 9-6 victory over the Minnesota Twins. The victory was Baltimore's 11th in its last 12 games.

After Sunday's action, the Orioles lead New York and Detroit by 4½ games and Milwaukee by five in the East.

Wlener Storm Davis, 12-5, gave up seven hits in seven innings. Tippy Martinez worked the last two innings and notched his 14th save.

Eddie Murray led off the eighth with a double off loser Ron Davis, 37, who then walked pinch hitters Al Bumbry and Jim Dwyer to lead the bases. John Lowenstein delivered a pinch-hit sacrifice fly to center to bring in Murray with the go-ahead run. Todd Cruz beat out an infield single to re-load the bases and Shelby laced a single over second to score Bumbry and Dwyer.

Glenn Givler hit a sacrifice fly in the ninth for the Orioles' final run.

American

Minnesota erased a 5-3 Baltimore lead with a pair of runs in the seventh. Randy Bush tied off with a triple and scored on Tom Brumansky's triple. Lenny Faedo hit a sacrifice fly to tie the score 5-5.

Tilo Landrum launched the Orioles' four-run second with his first homer of the year. Rick Dempsey had an RBI single and Dan Ford singled in two runs. Baltimore's Eddie Murray led off the third with his 26th homer of the season.

The Twins scored their first run in 23 innings when Faedo singled in Dave Engle with two out in the fifth. They added two more runs in the inning on Darrell Brown's two-run single and Dan Ford singled in the eighth closed out the Twins' scoring.

Toronto 6, Detroit 3

At Toronto, Ernie Whitt's second home run of the game — a three-run shot with two out in the 10th — lifted the Blue Jays. Whitt's second homer, his 15th of the season, came on a 3-run homer from Aurelio Lopez, 3-3. Dave Stieb, who struck out a career-high 11, upped his record to 14-11, and pitched out in the 10th. Lloyd Moseby, who went 4-for-5, sliced a double down the left field line off Lopez. After Willie Upshaw drew an intentional walk, Cliff Johnson filed out and Whitt followed with an RBI single, which hit the top of the center field fence and bounced over.

The clubs were 33 minutes away from a 5 p.m. EDT curfew in effect because of a concert scheduled for Exhibition Stadium. No inning could have started after the curfew.

Trailing 3-2, the Tigers pulled even in the eighth. Alan Trammell led off with a walk and Larry Herndon singled through the hole vacated by shortstop Alfredo Griffin. Trammell, running on the pitch, scored from first.

Boston 6, Chicago 2

At Boston, Bruce Hurst pitched a four-hitter for his sixth complete game of the season and Tony Armas drove in three runs to lift the Red Sox. Hurst, who gave up Ron Kittle's 30th home run, struck out eight and walked three in raising his record to 11-10. Brett Burns hit to 8-9.

California 5, Milwaukee 3

At Anaheim, Calif., Doug DeCinces hit a three-run homer with two out in the sixth inning to lift the Angels and hand Don Sutton, 7-12, his seventh straight defeat. Tommy John, 10-11, scattered 11 hits over 8½ innings for the victory.

New York 4, Seattle 3

At Seattle, Mike Gulyard tossed an eight-inning 8-2 innings and Omar Moreno drove in two runs to lead the Yankees. Gulyard, 17-8, walked none and fanned six. He missed his league-leading 17th complete game when Steve Henderson hit a two-run homer with two out in the ninth. Rick Gossage got the last out for his 17th save. Bryan Clark led to 6-7.

Cleveland 9, Oakland 2

At Oakland, Calif., Pat Tabler keyed a five-run fifth inning with a two-run single and Rick Sutcliffe pitched a complete game to pace the Indians. Sutcliffe, 16-9, stranded 10 while allowing a seven-hitter. He struck out eight while walking three. Steve McCally, 1-1, took the loss.

Texas 3, Kansas City 2

At Arlington, Texas, Dave Stewart pitched 8½ sparkling innings, helping the Rangers. Stewart, 2-1, narrowly missed his first complete game in the majors. Rallever Victor Cruz survived an RBI single by Leon Roberts to notch the last out for his fifth save. Eric Rasmussen, 2-4, took the loss.

Briefly in Sports

Vilas, Gerulaitis upset

NEW YORK (UPI) — Aaron Krickstein, a month past his 16th birthday, became the youngest player ever to reach the fourth round of the U.S. Open championships Sunday, in the process posting one of the more remarkable upsets in tennis history with a comeback five-set victory over 19th seed Pat Gilchrist.

"In the first two sets I was sort of in a dreamland; I didn't think I'd be here," Krickstein said after beating Gerulaitis 3-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

It was the second shocking victory by an amateur in two days, following Greg Holmes' victory over sixth seed Guillermo Vilas.

Two other seeded players were knocked off Sunday, with No. 12 Steve Denton bowing to Andres Gomez of Ecuador 6-3, 6-4, 6-4, and the sixth-ranked woman, Wendy Turnbull, losing to Andrea Leand 7-5, 4-6, 6-2. Denton said later he wasn't feeling well but didn't specify what was ailing him.

Otherwise, the top seeds all enjoyed a relatively easy passage into the round of 16 with second seed Chris Evert Lloyd taking the last eight games in beating Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria 6-4, 6-0, and No. 1 John McEnroe, No. 2 Ivan Lendl, No. 4 Yannick Noah and No. 5 Mats Wilander all winning among the men.

Lindsey wins first PGA event

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (UPI) — Pat Lindsey captured his first PGA championship Sunday with a runaway victory in the $300,000 B.C. Open.

Lindsey, 31, of Palm Harbor, Fla., showed great poise in locking up the $54,000 first prize in becoming the seventh first-time winner on the tour this season. His final round 3-under-par 68 on the 6,365-yard In Joe Golf Club course enabled him to win by the same four-stroke margin with which he began the day. His four-round total was 144-2-28.

Second-place Gil Morgan, the 1977 B.C. Open winner, shot a closing 67 to finish at 272.

Rookie leads LPGA tourney

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Laurie Peterson, a rookie seeking her first victory on the LPGA tour, wrestled with the wind and fired a 2-under-par 70 Sunday to take a one-stroke lead in the second round of the $150,000 Rall Charity Golf Classic.

Peterson, in second place after an opening-round 68 in the 54-hole tournament, matched two bogeys with birdies on the front nine and then birdied three of the first six holes on the back nine before finishing with a total of 6-under 138.

Sigel captures U.S. Amateur

GLENVIEW, Ill. (UPI) — Veteran Jay Sigel, playing consistent and unflappable golf, humbled 21-year-old Chris Perry, 8 and 7, Sunday to successfully defend his U.S. Amateur title.

Sigel, 39, an insurance broker from Berwyn, Pa., playing in his 17th U.S. Amateur, never let Perry back into the match after Ohio State's No. 1 golfer and Big Ten champion missed an easy putt on the last hole of the opening 18.

That made Sigel's cup play into the final round. He expanded that margin to 10 holes with a 20-foot birdie putt, sealing the victory. The contest left little drama for a national telecast of the final nine.

Fighter succumbs to injuries

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Boxer Francisco "Kiko" Beljines died Sunday morning of brain injuries resulting from his 12-round World Boxing Council bantamweight title bout Thursday night against Alberto Davila.

He was the 341st ring death recorded by Ring Magazine. Beljines, 28, underwent emergency brain surgery Friday night to remove a section of the frontal lobe of his brain but never regained consciousness.

A spokesman for County-USC Medical Center said he died of "massive cerebral contusions."

National League divisions tighten up

By United Press International

Tim Lincecum singled home Chris Speller from second base with one out in the bottom of the 12th inning Sunday to give the Montreal Expos a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The victory moved the Expos within 1½ games of first-place Pittsburgh in the National League East, while the Los Angeles' lead over second-place Atlanta in the West fell to 2½ games.

Speller opened with a double to center off loser Pat Zachry, 5-1, and Lincecum singled down the right field line to make a winner of Dan Schneider, 2-1, who worked three innings of relief.

The Expos tied the score 2-2 in the eighth inning. Bryan Lledó tied off with a double and Andre Dawson was safe on an error by first baseman German Rivera. Al Oliver hit a double play, little advancing to third. Gary Carter followed with a single to right off reliever Steve Howe.

Los Angeles took a 1-0 lead in the first. Steve Sax singled, stole second and scored on a sacrifice fly when R.J. Reynolds filed out to Warren Cromartie in deep right field. On the play, Cromartie went to the fence to make the catch and by the time turned around to throw the ball, Sax was rounding third and beat the play to the plate.

National

Oliver's seventh homer of the season, in the fourth, tied the score 1-1. The Dodgers moved ahead 2-1 in the fifth when Derrell Thomas tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Jack Flippo.

Atlanta 5, Pittsburgh 4

At Atlanta, pinch runner Brett Butler raced home on a throwing error by first baseman Lee Mazzilli in the eighth inning to help the Braves snap a six-game losing streak.

With Pittsburgh leading 5-4, Dale Murphy tied off the eighth by singling to left off reliever Jim Bibby, 4-11. Chris Chambliss doubled in Murphy, knocking out Bibby and bringing in Butler as a pinch runner. Glenn Hubbard's throw sailed down the right field line. Butler scored to make a winner of reliever Terry Forster, 3-2. Steve Bedrosian pitched the ninth for his 19th save.

Pittsburgh took a 5-4 lead by scoring three runs in the bottom on two-run singles by Tony Pena and Johnny Ray.

Pittsburgh took a 1-0 lead in the first off starter Craig McMurtry on a sacrifice fly by Dave Parker.

The Braves went ahead 4-0 on two homers by Murphy. Murphy powered his first home run of the game, with Claude Williams aboard in the fourth, then slammed a two-run homer, again with Washington aboard in the sixth, for his 28th homer of the season.

San Francisco 10, Philadelphia 4

At Philadelphia, Darrell Evans and Jack Clark each hit a two-run homer to lead San Francisco. Andy McGaffigan, 3-3, pitched 4½ relief innings. Greg Minion entered in the seventh and gained his 18th save. Kevin Gross, 4-5, took the loss.

San Francisco took a 2-0 lead in the first when Tom O'Malley was safe on an error by second baseman Juan Samuel and Evans connected for his 28th home run.

The Giants chased Gross with three runs in the second. Steve Nicolais walked and scored on a double to right by starter Mark Davis. After a walk to Johnnie LeMaster, O'Malley singled home LeMaster. LeMaster scored when third baseman Mike Schmidt threw wildly on Clark's to grounder to third.

Philadelphia came back with three runs in the bottom of the second. Sixto Lezcano opened with a single, Tony Perez walked and Ivan DeJesus was safe on an error by third baseman O'Malley to lead the bases. Fincher hit Al Sanchez singled to left, driving in Lezcano and Perez, and Samuel beat out an infield hit to lead the bases. With a 2-0 count on Gary Matthews, McGaffigan replaced Davis and completed the walk to force in a third run. Schmidt struck out to end the threat.

San Diego 7, New York 5

At New York, Terry Kennedy's two-run error highlighted a six-run fifth inning and sparked San Diego. Kennedy's homer, his 12th of the season, knocked out starter Ed Lynch, 9-9. Sid Monge, 6-2, picked up the victory in relief of starter Andy Hawkins and Elias Sosa collected his first save.

St. Louis 5, Cincinnati 4

At St. Louis, Willie McGee singled in Yonnie Smith from second base with one out in the ninth inning to boost the Cardinals. McGee lined an 0-1 pitch from Ben Hayes, 4th Smith beat the throwout Edolie Miller to the plate. Jeff Labi, who relieved in the top of the inning got the win to raise his record to 3-1.

Chicago 9, Houston 7

At Chicago, rookie Carmelo Martinez pitched a four-run eighth inning with a two-out, three-run homer to rally the Cubs. Martinez's homer, his fifth of the year, came off reliever Bill Dawley, 6-4. Warren Brusstar, the fourth Cubs pitcher, saved one hit in two innings to raise his record to 5-1. Lee Smith notched his 24th save.

Colts edge Patriots to end nine-game slump

By United Press International

Frank Kush looked somber in his moment of triumph but his young Baltimore Colts eagerly savored what for many of them was their first NFL victory.

The Colts snapped a nine-game losing streak dating back to Dec. 20, 1981, with a wild 29-23 overtime victory Sunday over the New England Patriots. Linebacker Johnnie Cooks returned Tony Collins' fumble 52 yards on the second play of the extra period to give the Colts the victory. It also was Kush's first NFL triumph.

"It's one of those things I'll better appreciate tomorrow," Kush said. "But our club showed a lot of poise out there."

The Patriots moved to the Baltimore 40 on the first play of overtime on a 30-yard pass from Steve Grogan to Cedric Jones. On the next play, Collins swept the right side but coughed up the football when hit by linebacker Vernon Maxwell.

"I saw the ball scooting toward the sideline and I picked it up and headed for the end zone," Cooks said. "I've been waiting for this one (first win)

FRANK KUSH
At long last victory for a long time." Added Maxwell, "I just hit him as hard as I could. I knew a tackle wasn't going to win it but I wanted to knock the ball loose."

The Patriots, who lost three fumbles and had a pass intercepted, have now lost three of their last four games to the Colts. But this one, according to Coach Ron Meyer, was one of the toughest.

"We made mistake after mistake. It's hard to put your finger on any one mistake, but the (two) missed field goals were crucial and also the fumbles. It was a devastating ending but we'll rebound next week (at Miami)."

Collins' drop was the second key fumble recovery by the young Colts defense, which sacked quarterback Steve Grogan seven times and also had a key fourth-quarter interception deep in its own territory.

Quarterback Mike Pagel marched the Colts 76 yards, completing 4-of-14 passes and scrambling for 52 yards, to set up Raul Allegre's third field goal, which tied the game 23-23 at the end of regulation play. Allegre, claimed on waivers last week from Dallas, hit from 33 yards after earlier making field goals of 25 and 32 yards.

Engel, who passed for a career-high 222 yards, hit Henry for a 16-yard TD pass in the second quarter and a 5-yard TD pass in the third quarter.

Linebacker Greg Braeclin intercepted a Grogan pass at the Baltimore five in the fourth period and safety Larry Anderson recovered an errant Grogan pitch at the Baltimore eight in the fourth quarter.

Grogan passed for TDs of 73 yards to Stephen Starring and 50 yards to Stanley Morgan, both in the second quarter. John Smith added a 39-yard field goal but missed on attempts of 37 and 33 yards and also failed on an extra point. Smith entered the game as the NFL's most accurate kicker.

New York 41, San Diego 29.

In San Diego, Freeman McNeil, the

NFL rushing leader a year ago, scored two touchdowns to lead the New York Jets to victory over the San Diego Chargers.

McNeil's two TDs were backed by two Pat Leahy field goals and time-consuming drives engineered by quarterback Richard Todd. Chuck Muncie scored twice for the Chargers. San Diego's Dan Fouts hit Bobby Duckworth for a 29-yard strike with 8:22 left to cut the Chargers' deficit to 7-22 but Todd found McNeil at the goal line for an 18-yard score that made it 34-22 with 6:43 remaining.

A 33-yard TD pass from Fouts to to wide receiver Charlie Joiner moved the Chargers within five points but the Jets clinched the victory on a 2-yard plunge by fullback Mike Augustyniak with 1:57 remaining.

Down 13-7, the Chargers took the opening kickoff of the second half to a 23-yard field goal by Ben Rischke. The big play of the game came when James Brooks' 61-yard sideline dash to the New York 5. The Jets' defense stiffened on the next three plays and the Chargers had to settle for the field goal.

The Jets padded their lead to 20-10 with a 4:24 left in the third quarter on McNeil's 9-yard TD run up the middle. The Chargers came back to make it 20-16 with a 6-play, 80-yard drive that ended with Muncie going over from 2 yards out with 61 seconds left in the third quarter. Ben Rischke's point-after attempt bounced off the goalpost.

New York raised its lead to 27-16 with 12:13 left in the game when Wayne Chutcheff went in from the

1. Miami 12, Buffalo 0
In Orchard Park, N.Y., Uwe von

Schamann kicked four field goals, including a 50-yarder, to boost the Miami Dolphins to victory over the Buffalo Bills in the NFL season opener for both clubs at Rich Stadium.

The Miami victory spoiled the coaching debut of Buffalo's Ray Stephenson, who took over the club when former coach Chuck Knox went to Seattle.

Von Schamann's 50-yard kick came just 40 seconds into the fourth period and gave the Dolphins their final points. The field goal was set up when Miami's defensive back Lyle Blackwood intercepted a pass by Buffalo's Joe Ferguson, which was intended for tight end Mark Brammer.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Dolphins took a 3-0 lead just three seconds into the second period on a 32-yard field goal by von Schamann. The kick came after a Miami drive stalled at the Buffalo 14.

An interception of a Ferguson pass intended for running back Joe Gibbs by Miami's Glenn Blackwood at the Buffalo 34 set up the field goal.

Raiders make the most of Bengal mistakes

By United Press International

The Los Angeles Raiders' 20-10 opening game victory over Cincinnati Sunday was directly attributable to Bengal mistakes.

"Mistakes will kill you," said Raider quarterback Jim Plunkett, who engineered an offense that controlled the ball for more than 35 minutes after capitalizing on Cincinnati errors. "It's whoever makes the fewest mistakes."

"Fumbles, mistakes and penalties hurt us," agreed Cincinnati Coach Forrest Gregg.

Three of the Raiders' four scores came after Cincinnati mistakes — two fumbles and a pass interception. Los Angeles also was able to build a 17-0 first half lead thanks to five costly Bengal penalties that gave the Raiders an additional 54 yards in the first two quarters.

"We didn't give up any turnovers except for one interception," said a pleased Raider Coach Tom Flores. "No question about it, I am very happy with our performance."

Marcus Allen, held to zero yards rushing a year ago by the Bengals, was Sunday's leading runner with 47 yards in 17 carries, including both of the Raiders' touchdowns on 1-yard runs. LA's other scores came on 38 and 39-yard field goals by Chris Bahr.

"I wanted to gain at least one yard this year," laughed Allen. "The big difference between today and a year ago was our offensive line — it did an excellent job today."

For some reason, the Bengals were a little sluggish today.

"There were very few bright spots for us," agreed Gregg. "We played hard, but not well."

Cincinnati was unable to score until 35 minutes had elapsed when Jim Breach kicked a 36-yard field goal.

The Bengals' only other score was a meaningless 9-yard touchdown pass from Ken Anderson to M.L. Harris with just 1 minute left in the already-decided game.

"Our defense was okay in the second half, but they controlled the ball in the first half," said Gregg.

The Raiders put the game away in the first half by controlling the ball 21:10 to Cincinnati's 8:50 and building a 17-0 halftime lead.

The Raiders kept their marches going with five penalties for 54 yards in the decisive first half.

Anderson also triggered two Los Angeles scoring drives by throwing an interception and losing a fumble.

Jim Plunkett completed 14-of-29 passes for 156 yards and Allen, who had been held to no yards rushing a year ago by the Bengals, gained 47 yards in 17 carries.

The Raiders ate up the first 7:28 of the game with an 84-yard scoring drive in 15 plays. Allen leaped the final yard to a touchdown to stake Los Angeles to a 7-0 lead.

A costly Bengals penalty — a roughing the passer call on Reggie Williams on a 3rd-and-9 pass in completion play — kept the Raiders' drive going.

On a 3rd-and-23, Plunkett passed 26 yards to Malcolm Barnwell and on a 4th-and-1, Allen scrambled 6 yards. Kansas City 17, Seattle 13.

In Kansas City, Mo., Bill Kenney threw a 9-yard touchdown pass to Henry Marshall and halfback Jewel Thomas. Los Angeles' 18-yard scoring pass to Carlos Carson to give the Kansas City Chiefs a victory over the Seattle Seahawks and make a winner out of John Mackovic in his head coaching debut.

Kenney was 19-of-32 for 247 yards in Mackovic's new pass-oriented scheme to deliver Kansas City its fourth straight win over Seattle and avenge a 14-9 season-opening loss to Chuck Knox and the Buffalo Bills in 1982. Knox now coaches the Seahawks.

Rookie Curt Warner, the third overall pick of the 1983 draft, bolted 60 yards down the left sideline on the first play of the game and the Seahawks continued the drive to the Kansas City 1-1. But Warner was thrown for six yards in losses on the next two plays and a holding penalty forced the Seahawks to settle for a 34-yard field goal by Norm Johnson.

But the Chiefs answered immediately with an 80-yard, 9-play drive, with Kenney throwing his TD pass to Marshall for a 7-3 lead. Kenney completed 5-of-6 passes during the drive for 69 yards, including a 41-yard bomb to Anthony Hancock over Seattle cornerback Keith Simpson.

A 19-yard third quarter punt by Kansas City rookie Jim Arnold to the Seattle 41 and a 21-yard pass from Jim Zorn to Steve Largent on the first play set up Seattle for a 48-yard field goal by Johnson to cut the Chiefs' lead to yards to Hancock, 17 yards to Ed Beckman and 22 yards to Marshall to move the ball to the Seattle 18.

7-6. But Kansas City again answered on its next possession. Kenney threw completions of 13

Thomas then took a pitchout from Kenney, rolled right and threw a pass up for grabs into the end zone for which Carson fought off Seattle safety Dave Brown to give the Chiefs an insurmountable 14-6 lead.

Back to Health By Dr. Ronald Renwick "DEGENERATED DISC"

A disc is one of the toughest and most resilient parts of the human body. Normal discs are rarely injured as a direct result of any accident. If they were, professional football players would spend most of their time in hospitals instead of on the playing field. As we grow older and less active, the tough elastic tissue of the disc begins to lose its fluid, much like a sponge that dries out. This thins and weakens the disc and it is less able to perform its normal function as a shock absorber. Discs usually begin to show signs of degeneration at about 25 years of age. Some of the factors causing disc degeneration are inactivity, poor posture, overweight, injuries, and jobs requiring heavy lifting and especially prolonged sitting.

Only in about 2% of reported disc cases is a disc actually ruptured. Fortunately, 85% of all disc problems can be managed effectively through modern chiropractic methods.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practice of scientific chiropractic, written by Dr. Ronald Renwick, Main West Chiropractic Clinic, 717 Main Ave., Twin Falls, Id. Tel. 723-8322.)

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"The people to fear are not those who disagree with you, but those who disagree and are too cowardly to let you know." - Napoleon

There were no cowards present after today's game was lost. South tried to blame it on bad luck; all three of the others were quick to set him straight.

West took two high spades and shifted to the diamond queen when East played "spades up the line."

South won his diamond king, and when West discarded on the second high trump, South advised one and all about his continued streak of bad luck.

"I find two jacks in dummy and both of them are naturally worthless." With that, he disgustedly conducted a trump and a diamond for one down.

"My jacks may have been worthless," chastised North. "But you could have put my trump 10 to use."

And North was right. Instead of conceding to one, it could cost nothing to play the hand to completion.

After the second trump, South should cash his high clubs and his diamond ace, and then lead his high trump lead by East is a give-up. The lead is now in dummy and South's Q-9 of
